Bard at Balboa

Q. Will the Shakespearean festival be held again this year in San Diego? If so, can you tell me what plays will be performed? — B.T., Long Beach.

A. June 9 is the opening date of the 21st annual San Diego National Shakespeare Festival, staged in the Old Globe Theater in the city's Balboa Park. Professional repertory performances will continue through Sept. 13, according to a spokesman for the theater. This year's three plays — performed every evening except Monday, with matinees on Wednesday, Saturday and Sunday — are "Much Ado About Nothing," "Cymbeline" and "King Richard II." Reservations are encouraged, and may be obtained by calling (714) 239-2255 or writing the Old Globe Theatre, Balboa Park, San Diego, Calif. 92101.

Bug Business

Current Events

Q. I have heard that an electrician's union is sponsoring an apprentice program. I would like to get into this field, but I don't know who to contact. Can ACTION LINE help me? — N.D., Wilmington.

A. The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers has a four-year apprentice program that enables trainees to get on-the-job experience and attend school two nights a week. Applications are accepted twice a year, in February and September. Applicants must be between 18 and 24 years old, high school graduates, and have completed an algebra I course in school. If you have served in the military, the age limit can be extended up to four years. Apprentices are chosen on the basis of an aptitude test score and an oral interview. Trainees receive 50 per cent of a journeyman's salary. Applications should be mailed in September to the union at 2316 W. Seventh St., Los Angeles, Calif. 90057. For more information, you can call the union's Wilmington office at 834-6468.

Form Letter

Q. Can you please tell me who is responsible for the new, more complex income tax forms, and where we can complain about them? This year is going to be a bonanza for anyone who hangs out a shingle and advertises making out income tax forms. This year's forms make it almost a necessity to seek outside help. — M.D., Long Beach.

A. You can send your complaint to Randolph W. Thrower, Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Internal Revenue Service, 1111 Constitution Ave., NW, Washington, D.C. 20224. The new forms were designed by the tax commissioner's advisory board, made up primarily of Certified Public Accountants and tax law attorneys, according to Ken Sutton, public information spokesman for IRS in Los Angeles. When the form was completed, it was given a pilot test with "unsophisticated" IRS employees in the "clerical rank and file." Sutton said one of the principal reasons for changing the form was the elimination of the 1040 punch card form. He said the form was eliminated because too many people automatically sent in the short form, and overpaid their taxes, unaware of tax benefits available to them.

Mold Maker

Q. A few years ago, I bought a product in the East called Rubba Mold which was a latex compound that was used for making ceramic molds. I have looked for this product locally, but I can't find it. Can ACTION LINE help? — J.S., Long Beach.

A. ACTION LINE could not locate any store that carries Rubba Mold, but we did find several similar products. You can buy Plinflex Rubber Mold for $3.20 a pint at Earle's Hobby and Camera Center, 17439 Bellflower Blvd., Bellflower. Fiberlay of California, 16515 Bellflower Blvd., Bellflower, sells Plinflex for $3 a pound and Flex Mold for $4.15 for 16 ounces. You can order Mold-Tex for $2.95 a pint from Tandy Crafts, 3976 Atlantic Ave.

4 DEMOCRATS JOIN FOES

42-38 Against Carswell Nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The move to send the Supreme Court nomination of G. Harrold Carswell to a quiet burial in the Senate Judiciary Committee picked up the support Friday of four more Democratic senators.

Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., told UPI in Albuquerque that he "probably would vote to send the Carswell nomination back to the Judiciary Committee."

In statements issued through their offices, Sens. Frank E. Moss of Utah and Howard W. Cannon of Nevada said they too favored returning the nomination to committee. A third Democrat, who would not disclose his name, said he had shifted his position to join those favoring recommitment.

The four brought to 80 the number of senators taking a public position on the motion of Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., to recommit the nomination. Forty-two indicated they will support it and 38 indicated opposition. The others were uncommitted or unannounced.

The office of Republican Sen. John Sherman Cooper, Ky., an influential figure among Senate Republicans, said Cooper would announce his decision tonight on both the nomination and the effort to send it back to committee. So far, Cooper has given no hint on how he will vote.

In a statement issued here and at a news conference in Salt Lake City, Moss, a middle-of-the-road Democrat, said Carswell lacked Supreme Court "calibre." He said the judge "has made statements and has conducted his court in a manner that indicates he is racially prejudiced."

"The President has a right to nominate a so-called strict constructionist and a southerner," he said. "But it does a disservice to both southerners and strict constructionists to offer Judge Carswell for our highest bench."

At the same time, Sen. George Murphy, R-Calif., termed "categorically in-true" a published report that he would vote for recommitment of the nomination.

Murphy said the arguments against Carswell were "trivial and constitute an obviously contrived campaign to discredit a worthy judge because of a disagreement with his judicial philosophy."

Carriers Set New Deadline

Mail Strike Due Thursday if Pay Negotiations Fail

WASHINGTON — The leader of the nation's letter carriers has set a new nationwide postal strike deadline of 2 p.m. EST Thursday if there is no breakthrough on a pay increase, but he is reported optimistic the deadline will be met.

Government and union negotiators agreed Friday that postal workers "need and must have a pay increase," but that they have been unable to agree on how much and when.

The two sides issued a statement saying they have put off consideration of many other issues involved in the dispute, which touched off the week-long wildcat strike of postal workers, until the pay question is settled.

Negotiations recessed after a 3½ hour session Friday, and were to resume at 2 p.m. EST today.

Government negotiators have asked for more time to weigh all factors involved and the unions have agreed to recess until 2 p.m. today.

"All other problems, and there are many, require long discussion after point one (on wages) has been resolved. We have agreed to postpone consideration of these issues until the wage question is decided," the statement said.

The statement said both sides had agreed not to disclose terms of their discussion.

In New York, 10,000 National Guardsmen called up while postal workers there had been on strike were given weekend passes so they could spend the Easter holidays with their families. An Army spokesman said they have remained on active duty because of a Post Office Department request that they be available in case of a resumption of the walkout.

What makes it so hard to get by these days is that our necessities are too luxurious and our luxuries are too necessary.

DESERT HIT BY 60 MPH SANTANA

Gusty winds of up to 60 miles-per-hour whipped through Southland desert areas for the second straight day Friday, causing numerous traffic accidents that injured scores of motorists.

But Long Beach area skies remained relatively calm amid a mild santana condition which started the mercury heading for a predicted high of 75 degrees today.

Weather Bureau spokesmen said desert winds were expected to diminish somewhat today.

Light, variable winds during night and morning hours, becoming westerly at between 8 and 14 knots during the afternoons this weekend, were forecast offshore.

Judge Begins Action Against Controllers

United Press International

A federal judge in Washington, D.C., initiated contempt of court proceedings Friday against the striking air controllers' union as the crush of Easter weekend travelers worsened flight delays at some major airports.

The Federal Aviation Administration said it was "bad and getting worse" at Kennedy International Airport in New York City, where the takeoff line was 17 planes deep in early evening and delays were as much as four hours.

Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe issued a statement saying that despite the walkout, "the heavy volume of Easter weekend air traffic is being moved reasonably well and it is being moved safely." He criticized the "ill-advised counsel of those few men who put their own fortunes ahead of the national welfare."

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell ordered lawyer F. Lee Bailey and other officers of the Professional Air Traffic Control Organization to show cause by next Wednesday why they should not be held in contempt for defying a court ban on the air controllers' walkout.

Bailey initially contended the walkout was not a strike but simply a case of controllers calling in sick and fatigued, and that therefore, the court's restraining order Wednesday against a strike did not apply, unless individual controllers felt obliged to comply.

The air controllers, like all other federal employees, are forbidden to strike. Penalties under a contempt citation are at the discretion of the judge. They usually amount to a fine, perhaps $1,000, for each day the violation is continued.

Meanwhile, the air controllers' "sick-out" continued through the third day, with the Federal Aviation Administration claiming that operations were near normal and PATCO insisting that it was seriously

Clash Cited in Inquest Testimony

By PHILIP BALBONI

BOSTON (UPI) — The judge who presided over a secret inquest into the death of Mary Jo Kennedy's car recommended further legal action in connection with the accident, it was learned Friday.

Judge James A. Boyle of Edgartown District Court called for "further process" in the case but did not spell out the course of legal action he had in mind, according to a reliable source.

JUDGE BOYLE, according to the source, concluded some of the witnesses at the four-day inquest that ended Jan. 8 gave contradictory testimony concerning the circumstances surrounding the accident on Chappaquiddick Island across a channel from Martha's Vineyard.

Judge Boyle's report and the 764-page transcript of inquest testimony have been impounded pending a decision by authorities whether to move for further criminal action.

Though Judge Boyle has the power to push ahead with prosecution of the case, he apparently left it up to Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Robert H. Quinn and Dist. Atty. Edmund S. Dinis to decide what the "further process" should be.

DINIS TOOK the initiative. It was announced Thursday the Dukes County Grand Jury would reconvene in Edgartown April 6 to reopen the Kennedy investigation.

Jury foreman Leslie H. Leland, who made the formal request for recalling the 21-member panel, denied Friday it was the district attorney's idea. However, Leland said he

PILGRIMAGE FOR CHRISTIANS

Thousands Walk to Calvary

Combined News Services

Thousands of Christian pilgrims Friday retraced the steps of Jesus Christ to his Crucifixion on Calvary, while Israeli helicopters hovered protectively overhead.

As the pilgrims, many of them visitors from overseas, gathered at the St. Stephen's Gate entrance to the old city of Jerusalem, Israeli jets were streaking into Egypt on bombing raids.

Chanting the mournful dirges of Christendom's most sorrowful day, the pilgrims wound through the narrow alleys of the Via Dolorosa, packed shoulder to shoulder in its narrow confines.

Before them shuffled the heads of their religious communities burdened under replicas of the cross on which Christ died.

In the narrow doorways and alleys along the route, longhaired hippies and their girl friends in bluejeans and tee shirts watched in silence.

Overhead, Israeli helicopters whirled in noisy circles. But on the ground there was little evidence of Israeli security precautions.

A few police mingled among the pilgrims. But the hundreds of armed Israeli troops who now keep guard over the festivities marking Christ's birth at Bethlehem on Christmas Eve were absent.

The procession, several hundred yards long, took more than two and one-half hours to reach the Church of the Holy Sepulcher, which now covers the mound of Calvary and the sepulcher where Christ

South Viets Push Into Cambodia

Combined News Services

SAIGON, Saturday — South Vietnamese troops pushed two miles into Cambodia Friday in the first major attack against Communist forces encamped in the neutral nation. In South Vietnam, a Viet Cong booby trap killed two Americans and wounded 19 others. The U.S. command said the booby trap was rigged into an artillery shell that was picked up by troops of the U.S. Army's Americal Division during an operation southeast of Da Nang. Of the 19 men wounded, 15 were evacuated to hospitals.

While South Vietnamese troops were attacking North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces in Cambodia, Americans were striking against Communist forces in South Vietnam from the air.

Air Force F100 Supersabre jets flew raids against Communist positions in the A Shau Valley in the north, killing 21 soldiers. In the south, helicopter gunships swooped on a unit of Communist troops moving in the U Minh Forest southeast of Saigon. The gunships killed 15 Communists with machine gun and rocket fire. There were no American losses in either engagement, they said.

Viet Cong Move on Cambodia Province

PHNOM PENH, Saturday — Three columns of Viet Cong troops are advancing westward into Cambodia toward this capital city and Cambodian forces are being moved into position to block them, a member of the Cambodian national assembly said today. The deputy, Trinh Hoan, said the Viet Cong columns total about 3,000 men, all of them heavily armed. He said they had moved from the border with South Vietnam into Cambodia's Prey Veng Province and were within 50 miles of Phnom Penh. (Related stories, Page A-5)

VIENTIANE, Saturday — Twenty-eight North Vietnamese and Viet Cong diplomats left here early this morning for Hanoi on an International Control Commission plane that had picked them up in Phnom Penh. They had to spend Friday night on the floor of an airport lounge because Premier Souvanna Phouma would not let them enter Vientiane.

Israeli Jets Down Five Arab MIGs

TEL AVIV — Israeli jets, in dogfights three miles above Egypt, shot down five Egyptian MIG-21 jets Friday, shattering the Soviet-made craft with cannon and missile fire, Israeli spokesmen said. Egypt said its MIGs shot down one Israeli jet and damaged another. In other action coming as Holy Land pilgrims marked Christ's crucifixion, Israeli jets also struck at Arab gun sites in Jordan after a barrage of Soviet-built rockets hit Israel's Dead Sea potash works near the biblical city of Sodom.

First Non-Russian Flight Over Siberia

TOKYO, Saturday — An American-built jetliner operated by Japan Air Lines left Tokyo for Moscow today on the first non-Russian commercial flight across Siberia. The DC-8 jet carried 122 passengers, most of them Japanese, and a crew of 17 on aviation's newest route between the Orient and Europe. The Japanese flight inaugurated air service between Tokyo and Paris with only one stop, Moscow, on the fastest and shortest route. The Soviet prohibited foreign airlines from crossing Siberia until the Japanese route was approved after 12 years of negotiation. The trans-Siberian flight is 1,000 miles shorter than the present Europe-Asia route via Anchorage, Alaska.

ISTANBUL — Two U.S. 6th Fleet destroyers, the Brazier Robert and the Strong, passed through the Turkish Strait into the Black Sea Friday for a routine exercise and to demonstrate "freedom of sailing" in international waters. Arabs Claim Secret Jet Deliveries

CAIRO, Saturday — Egypt's semi-official newspaper, Al Ahram, said today the U.S. secretly will begin delivering to Israel 25 supersonic Phantom jets and 100 Skyhawks early next year, fulfilling Israel's original request for additional warplanes. Quoting diplomatic reports, Al Ahram said the U.S. also has promised to replace Israel's plane losses. The newspaper said the U.S., finding that Israel did not need the planes immediately decided to publicize its decision against meeting Israel's request now and use it to pressure the Soviet Union curbing its arms shipments to the Arabs.

NATIONAL

Census Deadline Set for Wednesday

WASHINGTON, Saturday — Mailmen on 150,000 delivery routes will continue to deliver millions of census forms today, one for every household in the nation, as the government begins its tedious every-ten-year head count. In metropolitan areas, the Census Bureau says, the form should be filled out and mailed back by Wednesday in the postage-paid envelope that comes with it. Elsewhere, notably in small towns and rural areas, an enumerator will come by to pick them up.

Most Southland families have already received their forms.

Eight of ten will get a four-page questionnaire that can be filled out in 15 minutes. The other 20 percent will get a longer form which takes twice as long to complete. In either case, the bureau wants the forms mailed back on Wednesday, filled out with information accurate that day. Outside the cities, an enumerator will gather information for one of the two long forms when she calls to pick up the short one. The vast majority of the enumerators are women. City dwellers who don't return their forms or fail to complete them correctly can expect a telephone call or visit from an enumerator.

Credit Cards Used in Lieu of Bail

COLUMBUS — Ohio Highway patrolmen can now accept credit cards in lieu of posted bail or fixed fines from motorists stopped on traffic violations. The arrangement hinges on agreements having been made in advance between credit card services and courts of jurisdiction. Ohio Atty. Gen. Paul W. Brown gave that opinion this week to Patrol Supt. Robert W. Chiaramonte.

The use of credit, Brown said, would allow patrolmen to stay on the highways where they can do the most good, and allow travelers to be on their way after an arrest with a minimum of delay.

3 Fugitives Captured at Roadblock

LEXINGTON — Three Cleveland jail fugitives, who held two women hostage on a two-state police chase, were back in custody Friday each under $100,000 bond. After a seven-hour chase, Thomas E. Thomas, 20, James Sykes, 22, both federal prisoners from Mississippi, and David Lee Carpenter, 19, of Lakewood, Ohio were captured at a Texas roadblock. Washington U. Outbreak Closes Campus

ST. LOUIS — Washington University was ordered closed by Chancellor Thomas Eliot Friday in the wake of campus violence in which one student and eight policemen were injured and nine students were jailed. Students and police clashed when 250 to 300 demonstrators tried to board up the Air Force ROTC building and "condemn" it. Eliot announced that the school is pressing for prosecution of the dissidents, who are attempting to force all ROTC programs off the campus. About 50 St. Louis county police and officers from University City and Clayton moved on campus to quell the disturbance.

College Students Flock to Florida

DAYTONA BEACH — College students flocked to Florida's beaches Friday in a prelude to the annual Easter invasion of vacationing youngsters. Students romped on the beaches here. Others pitched tents in a soggy pasture at Bithlo. At rainy Fort Lauderdale officials organized kite-flying contests over the surf in an effort to keep students out of trouble. Near Orlando a scheduled rock festival was expected to cut into the surfside crowds, but Friday the beaches were a tangle of oil-slick bodies in bikinis and baggies. A week of rain and a relatively sparse crowd of girls had many students grumbling at Fort Lauderdale, where police said about 7,000 had nested.

Top Crime Boss Arrested

Combined News Services

Meyer Lansky, described by police as one of the most powerful men in organized crime, was arrested Friday on charges of possessing drugs without a prescription. Lansky was arrested at his Miami Beach apartment and booked into the Dade County Miami jail. Bond was set at $50,000. The drugs were found during a search by U.S. Customs agents at Miami International Airport March 4 when Lansky returned from a trip to Acapulco, Mexico. Agents for the Florida Department of Law Enforcement said Lansky carried a quantity of donnatal. Donnatal is a mild sedative used to relieve nervous indigestion. Florida law makes it a felony to possess barbiturates without a prescription. Lansky vaulted into organized crime's hierarchy during prohibition days, agents said, and is possibly the most powerful leader of organized crime in the country. According to police files, Lansky last saw the inside of a jail 12 years ago in New York when he was picked up for questioning in the murder of Mafia leader Albert Anastasia.

Body in Freezer May Be Doctor's Daughter

By TOM WILLMAN
Staff Writer

Police said Friday the body of an infant, found locked in a freezer taken from the Costa Mesa home of Dr. Wesley Slocum, may be the physician's missing daughter. Costa Mesa Police Lt. Tom Durham said the body is believed to be that of a girl born in 1963 to Dr. Wesley G. Slocum, 43, and his wife, Marian, also 43.

Slocum, of 2037 Calvert St., and his wife were arrested Thursday on suspicion of murder following discovery of the remains by a moving company warehouseman, who smelled odors of decay coming from the locked freezer.

"We know that they had a daughter at that time, but we don't know where she is now, unless that's her in the morgue," Durham said.

Slocum was arrested in a corridor outside Dept. One of Santa Ana Superior Court, where he and his lawyer were awaiting a hearing in a $2.5-million suit against Santa Ana police.

The physician's wife was later arrested and taken to Orange County Women's Jail from a Long Beach alcoholic rehabilitation center where she had been a resident "for two or three days," police said.

MRS. SLOCUM was brought to the House of Hope of the Harbor Area, 522 Lime Ave., for treatment by the Santa Ana Salvation Army, according to Sgt. Cliff McBride.

The doctor's two daughters, Diane, 8, and Marian Rosalie, 7, were located in an Anaheim motel following Slocum's arrest, and were placed in protective custody by Costa Mesa juvenile officers.

McBride said the children have been wards of Orange County Superior Court since a 1967 misdemeanor conviction against Slocum, and have since alternated between county juvenile homes and parental custody.

Slocum was convicted in Newport Beach Municipal Court in 1967 of assault and battery against his wife, and of neglecting the daughters.

THE DOCTOR, who pleaded guilty to the misdemeanor charges in a preliminary hearing at that time, was ordered by Judge Donald Dungan to seek psychiatric treatment, to refrain from drinking intoxicating beverages, and to keep no lethal weapons in his house or office.

Police said the Calvert Street home, from which the freezer was taken, was vacated by Slocum on March 19.

The Schick Moving and Storage Co., of Santa Ana, picked up the Slocum furniture later on a call from a Costa Mesa real estate dealer, who had acquired the home.

According to McBride, the dealer said Slocum asked him to arrange storage of the furnishings, promising to have the items moved from the warehouse to new residence in the Los Angeles area within about two weeks.

McBride said the freezer, taken from the garage area of the home, was moved to the Schick warehouse, at 2061 Ritchey St., Santa Ana, where employees noticed the odors.

THE CHEST was broken open by warehouseman Charles L. Kirchberg, who removed a large amount of rotting food before discovering the badly decomposed body.

Slocum, who is being held without bail along with his wife, was arrested in the court building corridor, where he was conferring with his attorney, Paul Augustine Jr.

At the advice of Augustine, Slocum made no statements following his arrest, police said.

The doctor's civil suit against Santa Ana and 10 members of its police force stems from a shooting incident at offices he maintained in Santa Ana in 1968.

Slocum, wounded in the hand when officers responded to a possible shooting call, was later acquitted on three counts of attempted murder and subsequently filed the civil action.

Koletos' 'Hostage' Hearing Set April 6

Telo (Ted) Koletos, 48-year-old Torrance land developer charged with holding a savings and loan firm executive hostage at gunpoint, was arraigned before South Bay Municipal Court Judge Auten Bush Friday.

Judge Bush ordered Koletos returned to court for a preliminary hearing April 6.

At the request of deputy Dist. Atty. John M. Provenzano, who said it was for the safety of the community, Judge Bush ordered Koletos held without bond.

The judge also appointed three psychiatrists to examine Koletos as to his present mental condition and his mental state Thursday when the crimes occurred.

Koletos was charged with holding Ted Frederick, stairs office of Columbia 36, a prisoner in an up-Savings and Loan, 1617 S. Pacific Coast Highway, Redondo Beach, Frederick is a vice president of the firm.

KOLETOS surrendered himself and his unloaded gun to Torrance Police Chief Don Nash, a personal friend, who went to the office at Koletos' request.

Koletos, son of a Greek immigrant, wept as he told Nash how he had lost, through what he called a fraudulent foreclosure, a $231,000 building at 23222 Hawthorne Blvd., Torrance.

Koletos claimed illegal procedures had been followed in the foreclosure on a note which had been written by Harbor Savings and Loan, predecessor to Columbia's Redondo Beach office.

In arguing unsuccessfully that "reasonable" bail be set, defense attorney George V. Denny III told Judge Bush that Koletos committed the acts to call attention to the foreclosure.

Denny said within the six months since the foreclosure, Koletos has sought the aid of police and district attorney's investigators about the alleged fraud, but no one would help him.

2,100 Aliens Nabbed for Illegal Residence

Associated Press

About 65 Immigration Service officers have nabbed more than 2,100 illegal aliens in the first days of their annual, month-long Southland roundup.

Authorities hope to make an additional 16,000 arrests before the special effort ends April 17.

Normally about a dozen officers patrol Southern California looking for illegally entering aliens. Reinforcements come once, sometimes twice, a year from other districts.

MOST OF those arrested so far were Mexicans, says the Immigration Service, commenting, "The problem of the wetback continues to plague us."

The term wetback remains, though crossing the border illegally is a more sophisticated business than in the days when authorities could recognize Mexicans who had sneaked across the Rio Grande by their wet clothes.

Last year the service caught 283,000 illegal aliens in the United States, 225,000 of them in Southern California. Most of them were from Mexico.

MOST OF THOSE arrested in Southern California are found near border stations at El Centro, Chula Vista and Yuma, Ariz. But many are picked up far from the border, officials say, in interior areas where they have taken commercial and industrial jobs, usually at low pay.

Studies show that even an annual roundup isn't enough to cut the flow of illegal aliens looking for higher pay in this country, says George K. Rosenberg, director of the Los Angeles district of the service.

"We're trying to empty the ocean with a sieve," Rosenberg said. "We obviously can't stop them from coming in. Our policy is failing."

ROSENBERG HAS proposed that the government close illegal aliens' chances to work in the United States.

"These people are not criminals," he said. "They are economically underprivileged men trying to make a decent living for their families. The way to stop the influx is to deny jobs to the illegal aliens."

Rosenberg notes two obstacles: anyone can get a Social Security card without question and employers can't be prosecuted unless they help, encourage or transport illegally entering aliens.

Last of Phony $2 Million Found

VICTORVILLE (UPI) — The U.S. Secret Service announced Friday agents have found the last of nearly a half-million dollars of counterfeit bills stashed around a home here.

The agency said the bills were the last of more than $2 million in bogus money recovered before it could be placed into circulation. More than 70 persons have been arrested during an investigation which began last year.

Last November, a search of the grounds around the house turned up bills with a face value totaling $25,000. In December, following a report of a clogged drainpipe by the home's new tenants, agents diagnosed the trouble as $120,000 in counterfeit bills.

In February, bulldozers unearthed $86,000 more outside. And Friday agents digging in the grounds found another $250,000 in fake money.

Among the $2 million recovered was $200,000 in phony bills found in a container near a freeway when a telephone lineman stubbed his toe on it.

'PROFESSIONAL JOB' Market's Safe Looted of $4,000

A Dominguez area market was looted of almost $4,000 Friday by burglars who pried open a side door and drilled into the store's safe.

Firestone Sheriff's deputies said it was the second time in the last three months that Save-Mart, Inc., 2625 E. Carson St., had been entered by burglars.

The first time was in December but intruders then went away empty handed when they activated a tear gas mechanism on the safe.

Deputies said today's burglary occurred about 4:15 a.m. and appeared to be "a professional job."

The suspects, deputies said, they disconnected the store's alarm system before drilling the safe.

Investigators said they found about $500 in cash outside the market, apparently dropped by the burglars in their haste.

Jury Frees Suspect in Police Shootout

Anthony Reno Bartholomew, 20, was acquitted Friday of charges of assault with intent to commit murder on two Los Angeles police officers in a 1968 service station shootout.

The officers, Norman Roberge, 30, and Rudy Limas, 26, were seriously wounded in the shootout in which Bartholomew's brother and two companions were killed.

Slain in the Aug. 5, 1968, gunbattle were Stephen K. Bartholomew, 21; Robert L. Lawrence, 22, and Thomas M. Lewis, 18.

Superior Court Judge Norman Dowds ruled as inadmissible evidence that the Bartholomews and their companions were Black Panther Party members.

Bartholomew claimed he did not know the other three were armed when he joined them minutes before the shootout and that he fled when the shooting began.

Acquittal came after the jury deliberated two hours.

Prof Groups Intend to Form Single Union

Associated Press

Officials of the Association of California State College Professors and the College and University Council of the American Federation of Teachers say they will merge in an attempt "to become the sole collective bargaining agent" for the state college system's 13,000 faculty members.

Ross Y. Koen, executive secretary of the association, said in Los Angeles that 2,400 faculty members already have signed up for the new organization, to be called the Union of Associated Professors.

And John Sperling, president of the council, predicted 3,000 would sign up by mid-April and a constitutional convention would be held in late April or early May.

The association now claims about 2,400 members from the state college campuses, while the council reports about 1,800 members, including 350 at the University of California.

OTHER COLLEGE faculty organizations include the California College and University Faculty Association, the California State Employees Association and the American Association of University Professors.

6 Children Play Havoc in School

Six youngsters, including a nine-year-old girl, were gored by Lakewood sheriff's deputies Friday while wreaking havoc inside a Hawaiian Gardens School.

Damage, including 30 broken windows and furniture, was estimated in excess of $2,000.

Deputies John Dewyer and Eugene Wolf arrived at the Killingsworth Intermediate School, 21409 Elaine Ave., around 6 p.m., and after a couple of fool chases on the school grounds, rounded up the six culprits who ranged in age from seven to eleven years.

The children were turned over to juvenile detectives.

120 SNAKES, SPIDERS, RODENTS NEED HOME

The County Animal Control office in Carson received 120 new tenants Friday — but they're not the cuddly, lovable pets that people love to adopt.

George Baca, supervisor of the Carson office, said the imports from a deserted house in the Malibu Lake area included 75 snakes — mostly rattlers, plus a few king snakes — 30 black widow spiders, three kangaroo rats and 12 mice.

The creatures were taken from the deserted home in the northwest section of the county after neighbors complained that the hoard had been left unattended for three weeks and was potentially dangerous.

But, said Baca, the task of the four-man raiding team wasn't as touchy as it might sound, for all the specimens had been placed in cages or boxes by the former residents of the home.

Baca added that the Carson Animal Control office will gladly accept offers from the Los Angeles City Zoo — or any zoo — to claim any or all of the snakes, rats, mice and spiders.

disrupting the nation's air system.

As Easter holiday travelers began crowding into terminals, the effect of the slowdown worsened.

In New York, airlines posted warnings that departures might be delayed as much as five hours and that arrivals could be expected late by as much as three hours. "Delays in equipment" — that is, planes late in returning from earlier departures — was given as the reason.

An FAA spokesman described the New York area situation as "bad but not critical" and good flying weather would be a "saving grace" during the night. During the early evening, departures at Kennedy, LaGuardia and Newark airports were averaging three hours late and arrivals were one to two hours behind schedule.

The FAA reported in Washington that air controllers in five cities — New York, Los Angeles, Kansas City, Cleveland and Oakland — had reported receiving calls threatening harm to themselves or their families if they reported for work.

Air traffic in Indianapolis was reported moving "slowly but safely" after 26 controllers stayed off the job. About two-thirds of the controllers at Minneapolis-St. Paul failed to show and some flights Friday afternoon were delayed up to one hour.

A Penn Central Railway spokesman reported an increased demand for passenger space with the New York to Washington Metro-liner sold out for the past three days along with pullman train service out of New York.

AT O'HARE International in Chicago, the FAA reported departure delays of one to two hours because regional air traffic control centers were not staffed sufficiently to handle additional traffic. Inbound flights were delayed as much as an hour, and most airlines cancelled some flights to keep closer to schedule.

Judge Gesell's show cause order was issued against Bailey, Michael L. Rock, the PATCO board chairman and James Hays, the union's president.

Air Control 'Normal' in Southland

A call for a nationwide "sick-in" by members of the Professional Air Traffic Controllers Organization apparently was unheeded in many areas. Federal Aviation Administration officials in Los Angeles said Friday.

Only two controllers were absent from the International Airport tower during the early morning shift, the FAA officials said.

International, Long Beach and Hollywood-Burbank airports had normal control operations Friday, it was reported.

There were unverified reports that some controllers failed to show up for the Friday night shift.

H-Blast Cavern Ground Falls; 15 Damage Claims

PAHUTE MESA, Nev. — The desert above the ground zero of Thursday's massive nuclear blast here collapsed Friday into a shallow crater, the Atomic Energy Commission said.

The AEC also said that its Project Handley test shot has resulted in the filing of 15 damage claims in Las Vegas, several times as many filed after previous high yield tests.

Handley, a weapon some observers felt was a thermonuclear missile warhead, had an expected force equivalent to one million tons of TNT. The amended the Justice Department's request to require that Bailey also show cause why he should be permitted to remain as counsel in the air controllers' case.

Gesell said he did so because the government's allegations raised "a question of some import" if a lawyer admitted to practicing before the court should appear to be in contempt of the court.

As the Easter weekend crush of travelers threatened to lengthen flight delays at major airports, both sides in the controversy fought a battle of charge and counter-charge.

The FAA said the "sick-out" was a failure and that nationwide flight operations were continuing safely, with a minimum of delays.

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Federal Aviation Administration officials said Friday that Northern California air traffic was only slightly hampered during the third day of the walk-out by air traffic controllers.

Patco said the truth was that the air system "is severely impaired, unsafe, and in some particular areas, various facilities all but closed."

Lawyer Bailey, Patco's executive director, said his men would "fight to the end" to get the FAA to negotiate a solution to their grievances over working conditions and bargaining authority.

"It's beginning to look like a long haul," Bailey said, "but eventually the FAA will have to buckle."

About one-fourth of the 1,625 controllers assigned to the morning shift at the FAA's 21 regional traffic control centers failed to report to work — about the same percentage since the "sick-out" began on Wednesday.

Flight delays of as much as three hours were reported at LaGuardia airport in New York City and at O'Hare International at Chicago, caused in many instances by "holds" on scheduled flight arrivals at other airports.

The walkout was most effective at the New York area center, where 93 of 148 controllers stayed home; at Minneapolis, where 24 of 33 were out; Oakland, 40, of 66 absent; and Cleveland, with 67, of 117 controllers staying away.

Bailey shrugged off the 14,000 air controllers' failure to heed his call Thursday for a complete walk-out nationwide. "The people who have gone out are holding fast," he said. "In no case has anybody gone back."

Californian Named as Mortgage Chief

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nomination of Allan Oakley Hunter, a former Republican congressman from California, as president of the Federal National Mortgage Association, has been routinely confirmed by the Senate.

The nomination was approved Wednesday without debate or comment.

Hunter, 53, served two terms in Congress before losing his seat in 1954 to Rep. B.F. Sisk, a Fresno Democrat.

National Airlines Pact OK'd

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists announced Friday tentative settlement of a 14-month-old lockout by National Airlines of nearly 1,000 mechanics, but it was still uncertain when National might be able to get its planes back in the air.

The Machinists said final settlement remains dependent on negotiating a new three-year wage agreement for its members, and settlement of a strike by 3,500 National ticket and reservation agents and clerks who belong to the Air Line Employees Association.

National had been operating from New York, Newark, Philadelphia, Miami and other cities despite the Machinists dispute until the other union shut it down in the strike that began Jan. 31.

The strike has cut off National's lucrative New York-Miami run, and the Machinists' dispute had forced it to postpone its schedule start Jan. 1 on its newly assigned Miami-to-London route when British labor groups refused to handle its flights in London. Machinists' official George M. Brown said that under the tentative settlement all employees fired by National will be reinstated with full seniority and full pay and benefits. The dispute began in January 1969 when several mechanics who refused to taxi airplanes with less than three men in the cockpit were fired and other workers struck in sympathy. Then National fired them all.

Teamsters Walkout Threatens

WASHINGTON (AP) — The collapse of nationwide trucking negotiations Friday threatened to halt most of the nation's trucks.

"Negotiations for renewal of the national freight agreement have reached an impasse," said the Teamsters Union acting president, Frank E. Fitzsimmons, of the talks covering 425,000 truck drivers across the country. The current contract expires Tuesday midnight.

Fitzsimmons told the chief federal mediator, J. Curtis Counts, and Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz that the national trucking negotiations had broken off.

Counts said later both parties had requested federal assistance and the Mediation Service will participate in renewed negotiations starting Monday.

The breakoff came after the Teamsters rejected a three-year industry offer to hike wages and benefits nearly $1 per hour, including 75 cents an hour in wages. The union reportedly is insisting on at least $1.70 more pay per hour, plus other major benefits. Most of the truckers now average $4 hourly in wages.

However, the union still had not announced a strike vote.

where President Nixon is spending the Easter weekend while Congress was in recess, Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said Nixon would not withdraw the nomination and Carswell would not ask him to.

Ziegler said "some senators" who might oppose the nomination felt the issue should be settled on the Senate floor and would oppose Bayh's move to send it back to committee. He named Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., dean of Senate Republicans, as one.

Ziegler dismissed as without foundation speculation that the President is discouraged and is not putting up a wholehearted fight for the nomination. He said Nixon "stands behind and supports his nominee in all aspects."

Moss was one of 38 Democrats who voted last December to deny confirmation to Judge Clement F. Haynsworth Jr., Nixon's first choice for the vacancy created when Justice Abe Fortas left the court under fire.

Moss' announcement left these senators uncommitted on the question of sending the nomination back to committee: Republicans J. Caleb Boggs, Del.; Marlow W. Cook, Ky.; Peter Dominick, Colo.; Charles McMathias, Md.; Richard S. Schweiker, Pa.; Margaret Chase Smith, Maine; John J. Williams, Del.; and Winston L. Prouty, Vt., and Democrats Quentin N. Burdick, N.D.; Howard W. Cannon, Nev.; Alan Bible, Nev.; Thomas J. Dodd, Conn.; Albert E. Gore, Tenn.; Mike Mansfield, Mont.; Joseph M. Montoya, N.M.; William B. was placed after the Crucifixion.

Along the way it stopped — as he stopped — at the 14 stations of the cross, at the spot where he met his grieving mother Mary, where Simon the Cyrene relieved him for a time of the heavy burden of the cross, where St. Veronica met him and mopped his fevered brow, and there he told the women of Jerusalem who cried out at his suffering.

"Daughters of Jerusalem, weep not for me, but weep for Jerusalem and for your children."

In Rome, Pope Paul VI bore a wooden cross among Rome's pagan ruins in commemoration of Christ's crucifixion.

Tens of thousands, among them cardinals and children, watched as the solemn procession moved along the 14 symbolized stations of the cross in a chilly drizzle.

The Pope, wearing a simple white robe and white skull cap, took the cross at the 11th station, called "Jesus nailed to the cross."

His forehead glistened with rain drops but the 72-year-old pontiff showed no signs of strain as he held the six-foot cross in front of him with the crossbeam two feet above his head.

The Pope refrained from blessing the people in keeping with the sorrowful mood.

THROUGHOUT the day the Pope fasted along with millions of other Roman Catholics. Good Friday and Ash Wednesday are the only two full fast days left under recent revisions in church laws.

Earlier Friday evening Pope Paul, shoeless and without his fisherman's ring, prostrated himself before a cross in the Basilica of St. Mary Major in the church's mournful Good Friday liturgy.

In the United States, Christians mingled tradition with innovation in observance of Good Friday. Thousands attended church while others marked the holy day by donating blood to the poor or staging antiwar protests.

Roman Catholic Archbishop Fulton J. Sheen preached the "three-hour devotional" at New York's St. Patrick's Cathedral. Rt. Rev. Horace W. B. Donagan, Episcopal Bishop of New York, officiated at a three-hour Protestant service at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

IN SYRACUSE, N.Y., a group called Clergy and Laymen concerned About Vietnam read a speech by the late Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., urging involvement in antiwar protests. During the one-hour ceremony, a black high school student was given a black ax handle which he pledged to carry until Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox resigned or destroyed all the ax handles he has handed out.

In New York, a delegation from Queens devoted the three-hour worship period to donating blood for Harlem Hospital.

Bomb Blast Near Police Station

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A small time bomb exploded in a building across the street from police headquarters Friday night, but there were no injuries, police reported.

The explosion occurred in a closet on the third floor of the concrete structure, which houses the 11 Trevatore tavern, where a Negro social worker was shot fatally by a policeman last March 3.

Police Capt. William Conroy said the bomb was of black powder and triggered by a clock device.

IT HAD BEEN placed in a closet on the third floor, near a dining room where three or four persons were when the bomb went off. None was hurt.

Two closets were damaged extensively and electrical power was interrupted in the building.

Also on the third floor are the bail bond offices of Charles Puccinelli, who also owns the first-floor tavern where the shooting occurred.

Capt. Conroy said there had been no advance threats before the explosion.

KILLED in the earlier shooting incident was Miles Beaver, 25. The district attorney's office, noting witness statements that Beaver came into the tavern with a pistol after becoming angry at being called "boy," ruled the slaying "justifiable homicide."

The bombing was the latest in a series of similar incidents which have plagued the Bay Area in recent months, including one in which a San Francisco policeman was injured fatally at Park Station.

35-Ton Truck Falls in River; Driver Dies

WHIPPANY, N.J. (UPI) — A man drowned Friday when his 35-ton truck plunged through a bridge over the Whippany River that had a maximum five-ton limit.

Police identified the victim as Earl J. Dougher Jr., 26, of North Plainfield, who was hauling large stones in the truck owned by the Materials Hauling Co. of Clinton.

2 Couples Slain in Apartment

ENFIELD, Conn. (UPI) — An engaged couple and two others were found shot to death Friday in the bride-to-be's apartment. Police called it a quadruple murder and were seeking a man for questioning.

Police Chief Walter Skower said all four had been shot in the head and had "bled profusely." He ruled out any possible murder-suicide theory.

There were no signs of a struggle, Skower said, and no indication of robbery. The house had not been broken into.

Police said the man they sought for questioning was "young" as were the victims, and had been with them a short time before their deaths.

A .22 caliber rifle found at the scene was the "apparent" weapon used in the slayings, but this had not yet been positively substantiated.

DEAD WERE Linda Edmonds, 21, a cafeteria worker; her fiancé, Peter Donovan, 19; Paul Vasseur, 17, and Daniel Guertian, 18.

This residential community of 16,000 midway between Hartford, and Springfield, Mass. was shocked by the slayings.

Skower said the victims were shot sometime after 2 a.m. Friday morning. "Right now we're treating it as four homicides," he said.

He said there was no sign of narcotics use or heavy drinking.

The bodies of Donovan and Miss Edmonds were found in beds in separate bedrooms. Miss Edmonds was in pajamas and under the covers. Donovan was lying face down in bed. Both appeared to have retired for the night.

Vasseur was found on a divan in the living room. To his left, on an overstuffed chair, was Guertian. Skower said it looked as if they might have been chatting and dozed off.

THE RIFLE was on the floor near Guertian alongside a coffee table.

Another man, a friend of the victims' who was with them until around 2 a.m., discovered the bodies when he returned at 10:30 a.m. He was not identified.

Donovan, Vasseur and Guertian all worked for the Bigelow-Sanford carpet firm in Enfield. Miss Edmonds was employed by the Pratt and Whitney Division of United Aircraft. The four victims were described as high school dropouts who had gone to work.

Carbon Monoxide Perils Health Often in L.A. Area

By GIL BAILEY
Contributing Editor

Dangerous levels of carbon monoxide occur at least 30 times a year in the Los Angeles basin, according to the U.S. Public Health Service.

The health service, in a report required by a 1967 pollution law, admitted that the levels soar beyond the health hazard point frequently in many cities.

The California Air Resources Board, when questioned, said that the old California standard of 40 parts of carbon monoxide per million of air was violated in the basin regularly.

"New standards of 20 parts per million have been established. Violations are more frequent now," a spokesman for the Air Resources Board said.

The Public Health Service said adverse health effects have been noted with monoxide concentrations of 10 to 15 parts per million.

Persons breathing those concentrations had a diminished sense of time and distance.

"Maybe you'll be more likely to have an auto accident," a public health service spokesman said.

Heavy concentrations have been reported in slow moving downtown traffic, freeways, expressways and underground garages, tunnels and overpass buildings.

"We've known this for years," said the Air Resources spokesman. "It is nothing earthshaking."

The public health service report was made to a U.S. Senate air and water pollution subcommittee, headed by Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine.

The report estimated 100 million tons of the odorless, tasteless and deadly gas are pumped into the atmosphere every year.

Cars, buses and trucks produce 63 per cent of the gas, the report said, with the rest coming from fires and factories.

The document was the first detailed scientific report on the effects of auto exhaust.

"As long as we have an auto population of over 100 million, of which 80 million have no carbon monoxide controls at all, and as long as cars are allowed to move freely in our metropolitan areas, there is nothing we can do to reduce the carbon monoxide level," Muskie said in a Senate hearing.

He is sponsoring a bill to tighten requirements for auto exhaust on a national level.

"In six or seven years, my experience with the (auto) industry view on alternative sources of power is that there is no sense of urgency," added Muskie who is urging development of a no-polluting car.

The California air resources spokesman pointed out California does require auto exhaust controls on new cars.

"We have seven million uncontrolled cars and four million controlled," he said. "We're getting ahead of the game."

AEC Will Amend—But Not Stiffen—Radiation Rules

By AL EISELE
From Our National Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Atomic Energy Commission announced Friday that it intends to amend its regulations concerning the release of radioactive effluents from nuclear power plants.

The proposed changes, disclosed at an AEC news conference, amount to an exhortation to nuclear power companies to design and operate all future plants so that releases of radioactivity from the plants will be "as low as practicable."

"They do not, however, appear to represent any major change in present policy, and as such are not likely to have any direct effect on the State of Minnesota's battle with the AEC over federal standards."

Rather, the action was seen primarily as an attempt by the AEC to answer widespread criticism that it is not giving the public adequate protection from radiation emitted by nuclear power plants.

AEC Commissioner James T. Ramey said the proposed changes "are designed to improve the regulatory framework for assuring that reasonable efforts are made to continue to keep exposures to radiation (from nuclear plants) as low as practicable."

HOWEVER, Ramey and other AEC officials indicated that the proposed changes are primarily a formal statement of the AEC's existing policy of urging the nuclear industry to build and operate plants that stay well below federal limits on radiation exposure.

While they claimed that the changes represent an important extension of existing policy, the AEC officials conceded that the proposed amendments to Parts 20 and 50 of the federal regulations code are based on the subjective definition of what radiation exposure limits are "as low as practicable."

Ramey left no doubt that the move is at least partially aimed at Minnesota. Asked whether the action strengthens the AEC's hand in the Minnesota dispute, he replied, "That's before the courts and I'd hesitate to comment. But I think it does indicate that the commission's original program is operating below the maximum limits which is the same area that the state (of Minnesota) is purporting to regulate."

ASKED WHETHER the proposed changes would enable the AEC to force the nuclear power industry to design and build plants that operate well below the federal limits, Ramey said they wouldn't, but he added, they would provide "for more of a dialogue" between industry and the AEC regulatory staff.

As to how it would be possible to determine what radioactive discharge levels are "as low as practicable," Ramey said, "they (the changed regulations) are geared to the state of the technology and to cost."

Ramey took note of recent criticisms by nuclear power opponents that the federal radiation standards aren't strict enough.

"In our judgment, these criticisms are not justified, and many of them are irresponsible," he said in a prepared statement. "We believe that existing standards provide a high degree of protection to the public."

He said recent hearings by the Congressional Joint Atomic Energy Committee on the environmental effects of power plants strongly support that view, and added:

"As you know, some people have strongly urged that the limits in AEC regulations be lowered simply because the nuclear power industry has shown that they can operate plants at levels substantially below the limits."

"WHAT THESE people fail to realize — or choose to ignore — is that the limits in AEC regulations are upper limits and that we have expected nuclear plants to operate as far below these limits as practicable."

"As I have indicated, experience has shown that the nuclear industry has done a pretty good job in doing just this. These proposed amendments to our regulations are intended to improve the framework for this continued effort."

Harold Price, the AEC's director of regulations, and Lester Rogers, director of the AEC's Division of Radiation Protection Standards, presented charts showing that persons living within four miles of a nuclear power plant receive an annual exposure of between 1 and 5 millirems of radiation. The average annual exposure from natural radiation for a person living in the U.S. is between 70 and 200 millirems.

The AEC officials said that the Federal Radiation Council's recommended annual maximum safe exposure is about 170 millirems (a chest X-ray would expose a person to between 20 and 500 millirems).

They asserted that the radiation from most nuclear plants is between 2 and 5 per cent of the recommended upper limit of 170 millirems.

Ramey refused to comment when asked if the AEC is trying to quiet public unrest about nuclear plants by its latest action. But Rep. Craig Hosmer, R-Calif., ranking member of the Joint Atomic Energy Committee, said earlier this week that the move represents "a little bit of public relations" by the AEC.

MOOSE HAVE PRIORITY, NOT OIL

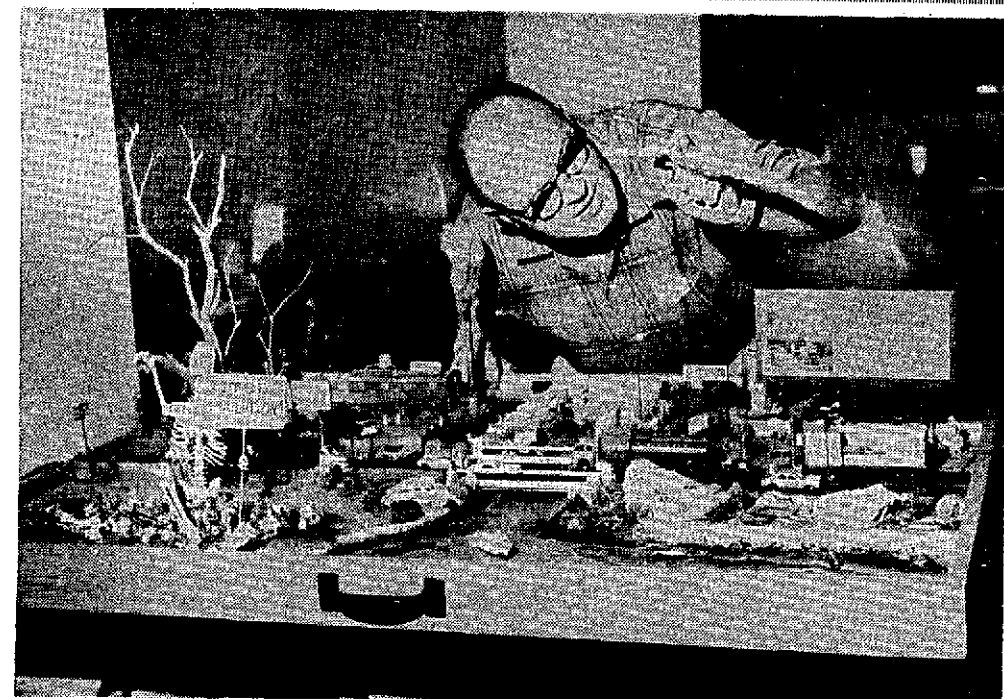

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)

— The U.S. Court of Appeals for the 9th Circuit ruled Friday that the federal government retained rights to oil lands underneath a lake in Kenai National Moose Range in Alaska.

The court set aside a District Court order giving the rights to Alaska and ordered that a summary judgment in favor of the U.S. be entered.

The suit was brought by the U.S. against Alaska and owners of oil and gas leases under Tustumena Lake in the southern half of the Kenai Moose Range.

On Dec. 6, 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt established the range as a 2-million-acre wildlife refuge area for the "purpose of protecting the natural breeding and feeding range of the giant Kenai moose."

BUT IT'S ALL THERE

Pollution on a Small Scale

It could be almost any stretch of Southern California beach.

There's a dump, a polluted stream pouring into the ocean, oil killing the birds and fish life.

Running beside the beach is a freeway crowded with trucks; in back of the freeway a bulldozer is destroying trees for a parking lot; a factory is pouring its waste into the stream and someone has thoughtfully put up a sign saying, "Keep America Beautiful."

Oh, yes, an airplane belches smoke overhead.

And there are some oil skimming tanks behind the billboard.

There may be some question of realism about the skeleton, holding the protest sign, "Stop Pollution," but in the view of Robert Laplaine, owner of Bob's Sign Service in Long Beach, that's the most realistic part of his display.

Laplaine spent two weeks and invested more than $100 to create his anti-pollution display because he wanted to join the fight against pollution.

"ANYONE, any business, school group or college, that wants to use this model is welcome. All I ask is that they take care of it," he said. "Just call me at HE 2-8743."

Twenty-four years ago Laplaine came to Long Beach after service in Army Air Corps.

"You got to be kidding," he said of a question as to whether pollution has increased since then. "Just look around."

No particular place or company is depicted in the three-by-five-foot, lightweight tabletop model, but Laplaine drew his inspiration from the area around the Henry Ford Avenue Bridge in Long Beach.

"I get sick every time I drive over that bridge," he added.

Laplaine hopes that his model will draw public attention to pollution, and result in action.

"Pollution is killing me too," he said.

Millionaire to Be Hickel Aide

By JAMES M. NAUGHTON

WASHINGTON — President Nixon will appoint Fred J. Russell, the deputy director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, as Undersecretary of the Interior, informed sources said here Friday.

Russell is a wealthy Californian with extensive real estate and business holdings that include ownership of a public utility water company.

He was said to be Nixon's choice to replace Russell E. Train, who was appointed chairman of the White House Council on Environmental Quality on Jan. 29.

Although Train was one of the nation's foremost conservationists and environmentalists, Russell's background is almost entirely in business.

The White House described Russell as "independently wealthy" when he was appointed to the post in the Office of Emergency Preparedness last year. According to figures released then by the White House, his real estate and shopping center investments in California, Kansas and Michigan produced gross income of $2.6 million a year.

EXCLUSIVE
N.Y. Times Service

Russell, 53, a college graduate, purchased the Weiser Lock Co. in Los Angeles in 1954 when it had eight employees. He sold the firm in 1967 for $13 million after building it into a major corporation with plants employing 1,600 people in the U.S. and Canada.

"He is a Hickel-type entrepreneur without a conservation background," said one source in the Administration.

Nixon chose Train as his first Undersecretary of the Interior to offset criticism of Secretary of the Interior Hickel by conservationists, who feared that he would be more interested in development than conservation of natural resources.

Since then, Hickel has been able to win a measure of respect from conservationists by vigorously enforcing some of the department's anti-pollution standards. At the same time, Nixon has vowed to make protection of the environment one of the priority concerns of his Administration.

Russell reportedly sought the post of Undersecretary. "He went over to see some officials in the department, who sent him up to see Hickel, and Hickel liked him," one source said.

TANKER BALLAST

Hickel Asks Oil Dumping Halt

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel Friday asked 10 major oil companies for a voluntary agreement to halt dumping of oily ballast water from tankers off the coast of his home state of Alaska.

Otherwise, Hickel said in telegrams to the firms, he may seek legislation barring all U.S. ships from polluting the oceans by dumping ballast water anywhere on the high seas.

Army Lets Firm Drill in Channel

Associated Press

Despite conservationists' pleas for a public hearing, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers gave Humble Oil Co. permission Friday to begin exploratory drilling in the Santa Barbara Channel.

Humble applied for drilling permits last fall, but they were delayed by the Interior Department's moratorium on drilling adopted because of the well blowout in the channel in January 1969.

WHEN THE CORPS announced recently that it had received the permit applications, conservation groups and city and county officials in Santa Barbara urged that the Army hold public hearings before deciding.

The corps allowed time for persons to comment or complain but didn't hold a hearing. A spokesman said the corps can look only for dangers to navigation and national defense in deciding whether to grant such permits.

THE CORPS considers only applications approved by the Interior Department.

THE INTERIOR secretary asked the oil companies to submit their views by Wednesday on a voluntary agreement to prevent pollution from ballast, along with a specific program for remedial action.

The 10 oil companies are: Marathon, Atlantic-Richfield, Mobil, Shell, Standard, Texaco, the Union, Cook Inlet Pipeline Co., Tesoro-Alaskan Petroleum Corp., and Alaska Oil and Gas Association.

COAST GUARD ICEBREAKER, BURTON ISLAND MOORS AT LONG BEACH'S PIER 'C'

BACK FROM ANTARCTIC

Crowd Greet Icebreaker

A un-sparkled afternoon and a big crowd welcomed the Coast Guard icebreaker Burton Island back to Long Beach from her 10th trip to Operation Deep Freeze in the Antarctic.

Civic officials; Miss White Hat, Ginger Avaray, and Miss Welcome to Long Beach, Randi Blesener, were on hand, too.

The ship's 181 men also were greeted by a happy crowd, including a giant, barking German Shepherd named "Shepherd."

He belonged to Marine Science Technician 2.C. Alex Edberg, Van Nuys. Edberg's pretty wife, Mindy, was kidded by friends that Alex would greet the dog first.

"Shepherd" was ready to leap aboard the ship as it neared Pier C, had he not been restrained.

The deployment, which saw Burton Island starting her chores last Dec. 29, is routine for icebreakers, in support of the Navy's logistic efforts in the U.S.'s scientific probes on the frozen continent.

The 'breaker's job is to open channels in the ice enabling freighters and tankers to enter McMurdo Sound and deposit supplies for the desolate winter months.

Ice-breaking procedure is termed "railroad tracking," involving two ships operating about 100 yards apart.

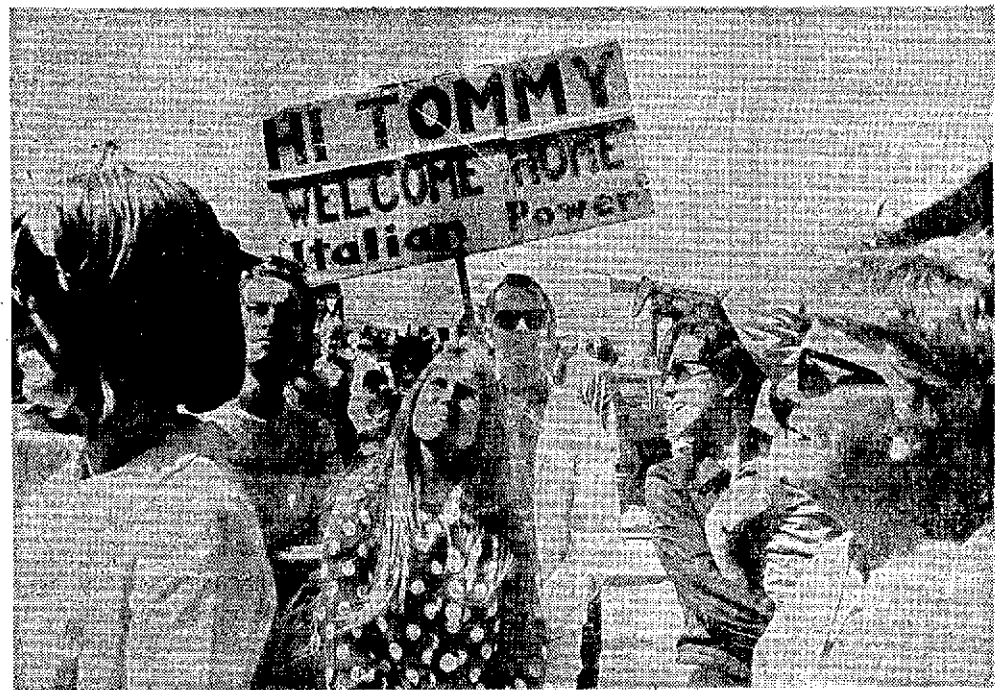

One of the 'breakers makes a ram with her knife-shaped bow and as it backs down the other makes a ram. Two working like this can gain just 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 miles a day battering through seven-foot thick ice.

Capt. F. E. McLean and the ship were complimented by Rear Adm. David F. Welch, Deep Freeze boss, for "a thorough job, demanding as it was upon all..."

Placentia Council Challenged on Legality of Annexation

Atwood's decision to annex to Placentia was challenged in Santa Ana Superior Court by two property owners who claimed irregularities in proceedings leading to the balloting.

E. L. Danker and A.A. Adams petitioned the court through the Anaheim deputy city attorney Mike Miller, who contended that the election Tuesday was only 41 days after the close of the last public hearing, and should have been 45 days.

Danker and Adams insisted protests against the annexation were ignored by the Placentia City Council.

They contended that if their protests were considered, there would have been no election. State law says if protests are made on more than 50 per cent of the assessed value of property involved, there can be no annexation.

Atwood residents decided to join Placentia after abandoning a "do it yourself" upgrading they undertook shortly after the Orange County Planning Department changed their zoning from residential to industrial three years ago.

County town, largely settled by persons of Mexican extraction, found it could not get home improvement loans with industrial zoning. Placentia agreed to rezone for residential use, but Anaheim said the area was "ideal" for industry.

Superior Court enjoined Placentia from a scheduled April 7 certification of election results, pending a hearing April 8 on the issue.

Cerritos Plaza Job Boosted

Another step toward expanding Los Angeles County's Master Plan of Highways and a move forward in widening the streets around the projected $41-million regional shopping center in Cerritos has been taken.

A resolution declaring a section of South Street from 700 feet west of, to 300 feet east of the San Gabriel River to come under county jurisdiction has been adopted by County Supervisors.

THE ACTION is required to give the county authority to acquire necessary rights-of-way needed to widen the existing bridge on South Street over the river and make that portion of the street part of the master plan of highways.

After the rights of ways have been obtained and the bridge widened, jurisdiction of the 700-foot street will be returned to Cerritos.

The proposed widening of the bridge to eight lanes is part of the overall street widening program in Cerritos to expedite traffic for the projected regional shopping center north of South Street between San Gabriel River Freeway and Gridley Road. Four major department stores and 70 smaller shops are scheduled for the center.

ALREADY under construction on a 22-acre parcel north of South Street and immediately east of Gridley Road is one of the largest department stores in the Fedco chain.

When the development is completed the Fedco store now located in Lakewood will be moved to the new location.

ORANGE CO. POST UPHELD IN COURT

The December 1966 appointment of Cecil M. Hicks as district attorney of Orange County was upheld Friday by Santa Ana Superior Court Judge Robert L. Corfman.

His ruling put the seal of approval on the decision by County Supervisors 3 1/2 years ago to give Hicks a full four-year term of office after Kenneth Williams resigned as district attorney to accept appointment as a Superior Court judge.

Since then, the Hicks appointment had been questioned, but never challenged until Dexter Penman, an Anaheim attorney, decided to oppose Hicks for election at the June 2 primary.

Penman objected to listing Hicks as incumbent, and claimed that the appointment was illegal. He asked the court to order County Clerk William E. St. John to "scramble" the listings of candidates for election, rather than give Hicks top billing as the district attorney.

Judge Corfman ruled that the supervisorial appointment of Hicks was legal and so denied Penman's plea to alternate the listings of the candidates for election.

Investment Talks Slated at Cerritos

The who, what, why, where and when in the art of investment will be the basis of discussions in a series of investment seminars starting at Cerritos College at 7 p.m. April 2.

An animated movie short entitled "What Makes us Tick" will precede the first of the three weekly sessions to be held in Room SS 316 on the Cerritos Campus, Alondra Boulevard and Studebaker Road, Norwalk.

ants, Charles Crockett and Michea; Good, both representative of the W. E. Hutton & Co. and graduates of the New York Institute of Finance, will head the programs.

Subjects will include investment objectives, The New York Stock Exchange, investments for income and investments for growth.

GARDENING

By JOE LITTLEFIELD

Schefflera, Queensland Umbrella Tree, in most cases was grown indoors as a husky house plant as was the large leaved rubber plant philodendron, the fig leaf rubber plant, and the Kentia palm. It graduated to patio container plant, then to outdoors as an evergreen shrub or low tree. It tolerates cold from 40 degrees down to 30 degrees above zero.

The outstanding quality of such a large bush or tree is the bright green finger-like compound leaves.

Five gallon can size plants may be available at some of the nurseries.

An alternate large bush or small tree is the Lagerstroemia indica. This crape myrtle blooms in August and might be just the plant you are seeking because it tolerates cold from 10 degrees down to zero degrees.

You'll help these plants to get a better start and conserve moisture in the soil if you mix at least two parts of organic material with three parts of soil when planting them.

DODDER, of the Convolvulaceae family, are sprawling yellow to orange color parasitic, leafless plants that twine up and around shrubs, ground covers, or any other plants that are near them, sometimes completely smothering them. They grow mostly in the foothill areas and live on brush and native plants.

Dodder has (haustorium) threads that serve as organs to absorb the food materials of the host plants. Dodder has even been found thriving in a dichondra lawn. We believe it is a kissing cousin of the dichondra!

Fortunately this parasite is an annual, but — unfortunately almost impossible to control short of pulling off the twinning threads. The old control remedy recommends a cup of ammonium sulphate to three gallons of water, poured on the threads, through a watering can that has a fine fountain head to diffuse the diluted fertilizer. Another method is to use a tank sprayer. The spray must be directed on the "threads" as much as possible. The purpose of the fertilizer spray is to "fertilizer burn" the threads to kill it back. The host plant (attacked) foliage may fertilizer burn, too.

Birds carry the seeds from the wild sectors of the foothill areas to cultivated gardens.

In answer to an inquiry about the Bueno "cocktail" avocado, we checked with Dean Borton of Calavo Growers of California, Los Angeles Office. He explained, Bueno avocado is actually a trade name, not a new variety of avocado. They are "cuke" avocados that look somewhat like small cucumbers. This fruit is a delicacy; some consider it a rarity, and they are used as cocktail avocados, also in sandwiches.

YOUNG avocados and citrus should be protected from the winds. They should also be protected from too much sun, and from possible frosts during the winter, for the first two years.

Three-inch red wood stakes which are a foot taller than the tallest upright branch can be used.

Two folds of coarse cheesecloth, two feet wide are nailed from the top edge of the stakes on down.

This provides light shade from the sun, protects the branches from sunburn. It is also handy in case of frost, with a temporary cover draped over the tree.

Labeling Rule Changes Slated

New requirements for labeling fertilizer-pesticide combination products for homeowners have been announced. A special committee, consisting of 7 members from the lawn and garden industry, 3 Michigan State University representatives and one from the Michigan Department of Agriculture, has been working on the problem for nearly a year. Industry representatives include major suppliers of lawn and garden products throughout the U.S. They have announced that labeling changes made for Michigan will be adopted on a nation-wide basis beginning in 1970.

Guidelines are:
1. Products will be clearly identified as pest control products.
2. Emphasis in labeling will be on the pest control aspect of the product.
3. Product labeling will emphasize particular use, such as "crabgrass control" or "grub control," etc.
4. Product labeling will emphasize application use, such as "for lawns" or "for ornamentals."

JOB TO DO NOW

Don't constantly rake leaves off dichondra lawn under trees and bushes. If you do you will eventually wear down the lawn. Hose off the leaves with sharp stream of water.

Fertilize the lawns at least once every three months to build up a better turf, also to choke back weeds.

Cut back thickly matted ground covers to within four to six inches of the ground. Sharp hedge shears, or power driven hedge shears are the tools to do the job. Verbena can be mowed. The lawn mower cutting bar should be raised high. Insecticide spray the area after the trimmings and debris has been cleaned off. Several weeks later fertilize with a balanced plant food.

Plant cinerarias and fairy primroses in the shade garden for lots of showy late spring color.

Address all questions to Garden Editor, Independent, Press-Telegram, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90801. No stamps or self-addressed envelopes, please. Answers are given only in this column.

Q. The Night Blooming Cereus on the east side of our house is a big plant, and has been blooming well for four or five years. It had 100 or more blossoms during September and October, some 30 flowers in one night. Now it is dying back. Quite a bit of the die-back has been cut back, but it still is dying. It has been given sulphur, also Lawnage. I wonder if you have any suggestions. Sure hate to lose it. Also would like to ask why we can't keep red flowers like dahlias and gladioli in our yard. They bloom one year, but after that no more. Had a black red gladiolus one year. It was such a dark red, but had it the one year. P.S. I sent some clippings of the Independent, Press-Telegram about avocado trees to my sister in Santa Barbara who was having trouble. Of course she hasn't had time to tell yet, but she had so much fruit drop this past year. She surely was grateful to get the information. Mr. & Mrs. F.

A. The cereus may be planted to deep; also may not be getting deep enough watering. Dahlia hobbyists dig up their dahlia roots each year, when the foliage has died down some time along in forepart of December. The roots are stored, then separated and replanted about Mid-March through April. Should the dahlia roots you dig up have knobby, wart-like growth on the roots, throw the roots away because nematodes, eel-like microscopic worms within the roots, debilitate the plant. Gladioli also are dug and stored when foliage has partially died, then replanted either late December or in January. Unless something else is growing in the same area, I'd tell the nurseryman you want to fumigate that soil and have him sell you a product that does that. Be sure to get the use instructions from him even though the container label has directions on it. I am sure your sister's avocado tree will benefit from the suggested feeding and will harvest fruit.

Q. Will you please tell me what to do for brown spots like these that have come on some leaves of my camellias? I've always used camellia food, but would rapid-grow be good for camellias? Mrs. D. S. Z.

A. Those brown measles-like spots near the camellia leaf edges indicate alkali leaf burn. The main cause for such condition is the gardener keeping the upper soil surface area constantly damp which helps build up an alkali condition from the water. First, correct your watering by deeply watering the camellia, then no more until it needs water again. Treatment is use of one of the "irons," whether iron sulphate, chelate of iron, sequestrene, or stabilized iron. Apply it three times at six-week intervals. Soil must be well watered day or two before application. Fill the basin around the plant twice and call it a one-unit application, followed by watering well afterwards. You can use a soil rinse-soil conditioner in a liquid form instead of iron. Whichever you use, if you apply it to a container plant, be sure you move the container to the soil or lawn; do not leave it on the patio floor or step because either kind of material may stain the floor.

Cut High Cost of Living with Your Own Minigarden

By PATRICIA MCCORMACK

NEW YORK (UPI) — Cut the cost of living by growing vegetable crops for the family this spring and summer.

You'll also develop patience, fortitude and other virtues — plus helping to put the body into shape. At least, you'll use muscles you never dreamed existed. You can tell by the pains the day after the first session with a spade poked into earth.

SOMEWHERE in the backyard there's space for the mini farm. If you live in an urban area, perhaps you and a few neighbors can get together and arrange to garden as a group on a vacant lot. Or — as some city dwellers do — rent land from someone in a nearby patch of country.

The yen to garden is hard to quiet in the amateur hayseed. To answer the call a career girl last year grew tomatoes in wastebaskets on a terrace outside her New York skyscraper office.

Friends who lived in the country brought in plastic bags of dirt and fertilizer. As the seedlings grew larger, she put in the necessary stakes and tied them up. It was against the building's rules but she just couldn't suppress the urge to garden.

Her harvest: four dozen tomatoes!

Assuming you don't have to resort to waste-basket gardening, the selection of a plot is the number one consideration. It should be sunny, have good drainage and be relatively free from stones.

On such a plot, with proper preparation and care, you can grow in most parts of the country tomatoes, beans, beets, carrots, lettuce and other vegetables for the family.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture makes these suggestions about the garden plot:

—The garden should be surrounded by a fence sufficiently high and close-woven to keep out dogs, rabbits and other animals. The damage done by stray animals during a season or two may equal the cost of the fence so it's a good investment.

—The character of the subsoil is of vital importance. The presence of hardpan, hard shale, rock ledges, gravel beds or very deep sand is likely to make the development of a high-grade garden soil extremely difficult if not impossible.

—The garden should be free from low places where water might stand after a heavy rain. Water from surrounding land should not drain upon the garden, and there should be no danger of flooding by overflow from nearby streams.

—If you are a neophyte, for best results have soil analyzed to know how much fertilizer or what other things need to be added to make growing conditions ideal. Soil analysis usually is available through your local county agricultural agent. A nurseryman or a neighbor who gardens usually can supply you with information for guidance if it is not possible to have the soil analyzed.

L. B. Group Given VIP Treatment

By ROBERT BECKMAN

KYOTO, Japan — Hospitality will not be lacking this year when delegates to the annual Mayors and Chamber of Commerce Presidents Conference gather here in the ancient capital of Japan.

Members of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce Expo 70 tour are witnesses.

A warm welcome awaited the group. City and chamber officials long had planned get-acquainted festivities to take place in the spectacular garden of Nijo Castle near downtown Kyoto.

Blustery winds with occasional snow prompted transfer of the speech-making and sampling of Oriental delicacies to the city's new International Hotel after the castle tour.

Many of the Kyoto officials were in Long Beach last fall for the '69 Mayors and Chamber Presidents Conference and each, in turn, vowed this city will attempt to return the hospitality.

H. George Hanawalt, Long Beach Chamber president, assured Kyoto's leading men and women their warmth "will not soon be forgotten."

The following day, the Long Beach group traveled by bus along a modern freeway the 18 miles to the site of Expo 70, near Osaka.

VIP treatment was accorded the delegation, with guided visits provided to both the Japanese and United States pavilions with no waiting in the long lines that formed soon after the Expo gates opened.

As befits the host nation, Japan has built the largest pavilion — and it is as interesting as it is big.

Five drum-like elevated structures surround a 260-foot tower, and from above the grouping appears to be a giant cherry blossom.

Theme of the Japanese exhibit hall is the country's progress, telling in exhibit and pictures the past and present. It then delves into the future "when the world will have come to know Japan better and when the Japanese will have developed their dreams."

The fifth huge hall, the main attraction, provides a Cinerama-type film, taken with eight-lensed cameras and shown on a screen 157 feet wide. It's a kaleidoscope of Japanese living, alternating between quiet tea ceremonies to the roar of modern traffic and industry.

The U.S. Pavilion is easily one of the favorite objectives of fair goers.

Major reasons include the moon rock exhibit (Japanese police are on hand to keep the crowd moving) and Apollo space craft along with a lunar landing module.

Theme of the U.S. exhibit is "The Images of America," and members of the Long Beach group wondered if a photograph of a topless girl is apropos, bare-bosom bars in the Southland or not.

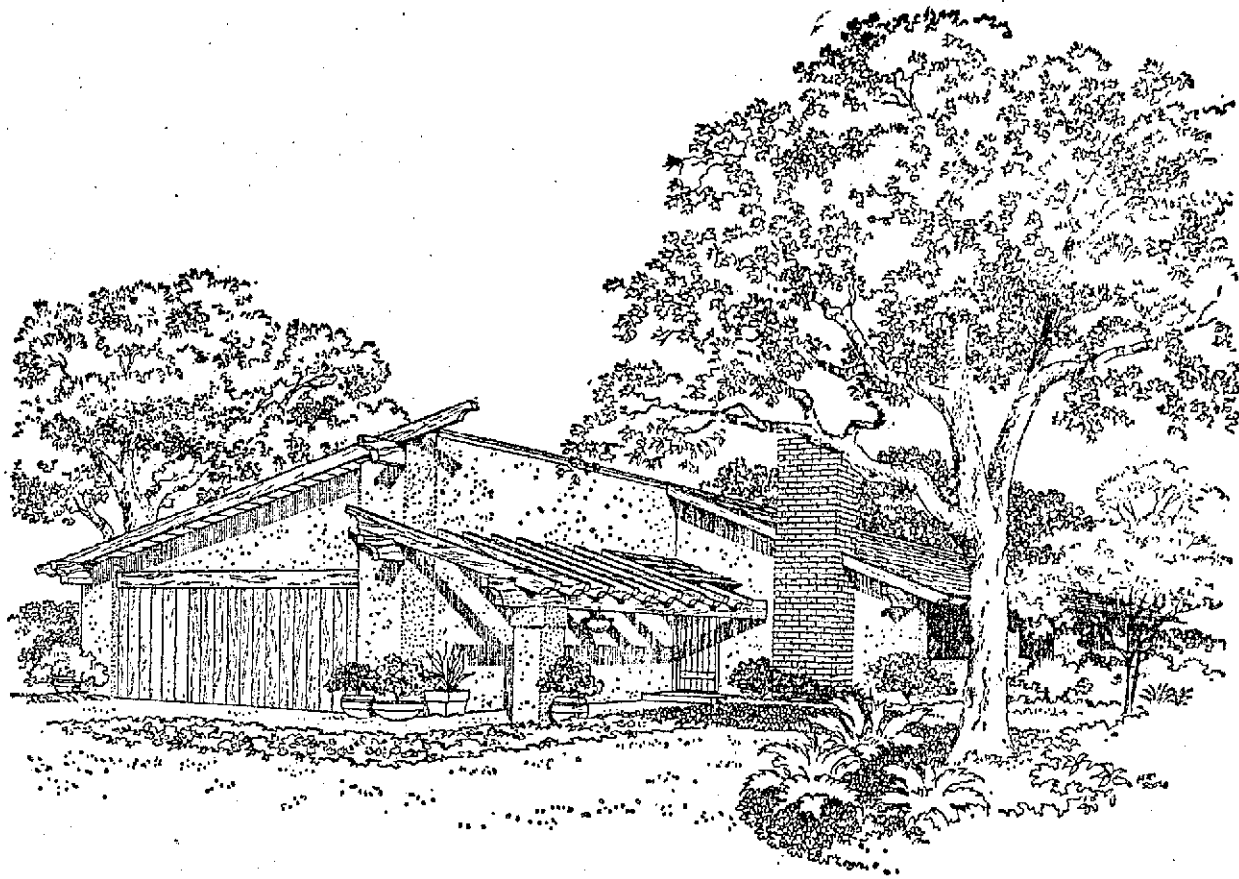

Third-day Expo crowds, however, gave scant attention to the photograph, one of the first they see upon entering the U.S. Pavilion.

They seemed more interested in panoramic views of U.S. sports, detailed exhibits of what a football player wears beneath his uniform, and a skydiver suspended in air.

The American painting, architectural, folk art and new arts exhibits obviously held the foreign crowds' attention for long periods of time.

The huge U.S. Pavilion boasts the largest and lightest air-supported roof ever built. Immense nozzles, that blend into the decor of the exhibit areas, provide about four more pounds of inside air pressure than normal and the criss-crossing cables only serve to keep the plastic roof from expanding further.

Next on the itinerary for the Long Beach delegation: a day and night in Osaka — with sightseeing visits to temples, shrines and a deer park — before flying to Taipei, capital of Nationalist China.

Some Sound Advice on Music in Home

By DOROTHEA M. BROOKS

NEW YORK (UPI) — A house is not a home without stereo, nowadays. Back a few years, "hi-fi" and the equipment it involved was strictly for the buffs — and the wife whose husband wasn't one considered herself lucky; all those bulky pieces, and the noise!

Today, however, quality sound equipment ranks on a par with television, laundry washers and dryers, dishwashers and garbage disposals. It's something almost every homeowner has — or intends to get.

And today good music need not ruin the decor or the budget. Proper planning will do it.

The experts at Panasonic offer some advice.

For the ultimate in sound and beauty, the ideal time to start planning a home entertainment center is while your house is being built. While today's equipment is compact, and attractive, and does not demand a special setting, planning for things such as outlets in the proper places, speaker locations and such is simplest when done while the wiring is going in.

Even if you are moving into a ready-built house or a city apartment you still can enjoy sound that was unheard of 10 years ago. No more the big, black, bulky equipment of the 1940s with its network of tubes and wires all over the place.

Today's equipment is streamlined — and available in designs to suit any taste, Colonial, avant garde, French provincial. Prices have been streamlined, too.

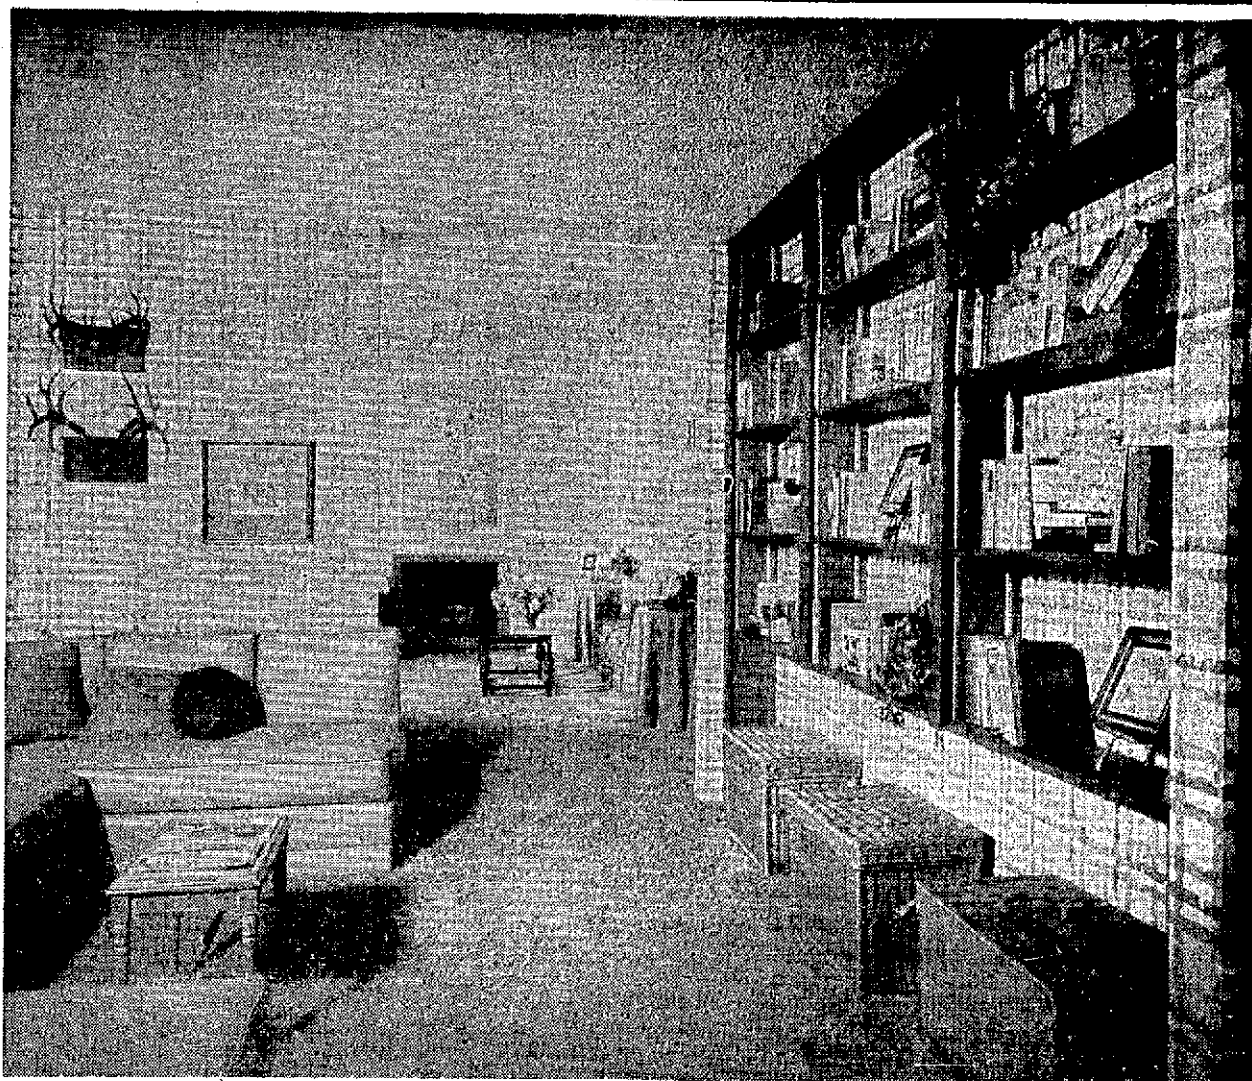

And the theory that music must be played at ear-splitting level to be enjoyed no longer holds. You can enjoy your favorite selections, hearing all the sounds you're supposed to hear, without forcing the neighbors to listen, too.

When it comes to planning for your sound system, you can design around it — in a music room or family room, for instance, or you can fit in unobtrusively — even in a cabinet or closet. Ideally, you will plan for auxiliary sound in several rooms; perhaps even outdoors.

Panasonic offers a few hints:

"Your room can be any shape, but watch out if it is very long and narrow. You can overcome this by breaking up the wall space with bookshelves, tall cabinets or paintings. And if you're lucky enough to have, or be able to create, shallow wall niches or exposed ceiling beams, they will add handsome dividends when you put on that Tchaikovsky concerto or the latest effort of The Fifth Dimension.

"Surface materials affect the pitch of blended sound. Smooth hard, highly sound-reflective surfaces like glass and bare floors emphasize the treble.

L. B. White Hats Enjoy Best Club in World

By BUCK LANIER
Military Affairs Editor

"What is the Navy coming to? I don't believe it! This looks like an admiral's club."

These were questions and comments when Long Beach Naval Station's Enlisted Men's Club was dedicated this week.

There was an admiral, too, but Rear Adm. Horace V. Bird, Los Angeles Long Beach Base commander, was on hand for the ribbon-cutting and to note that "I am proud to be doing this job to further facilities for our enlisted men. This is the largest enlisted men's complex in the United States and the most modern one world-wide."

Adm. Bird was assisted in the ribbon cutting by Ginger Avery, Long Beach's Miss White Hat.

Ginger, sponsored by the Independent Business Men's Association, joined the admiral for a tour of the facilities. Then she took time to pour the first cup of punch to Dental Technician S.C. Ron Burkland, 21, Lincoln, Neb.

Burkland, assigned to the station's dental clinic for the past 1½ years, said he "almost did not believe his eyes when he first saw the club but it was a great thing."

The 28,000 square foot two-story club has a ca-capacity of 600 and was constructed by R. G. Webb Co. of San Bernardino. Cost was $800,000 and it comes under the jurisdiction of Cmdr. Al Mason, the Naval Exchange officer.

Admission is for first class petty officers and below. Facilities include a snack bar, dining room, game room, color television hideaway and a lounge with dance floor for men under 21.

On the second floor is "Club 21," currently being used as the Acey-Deucey Club until that club for first and second class petty officers is completed.

"Club 21" features floor shows on Saturdays and live music Wednesday through Saturday.

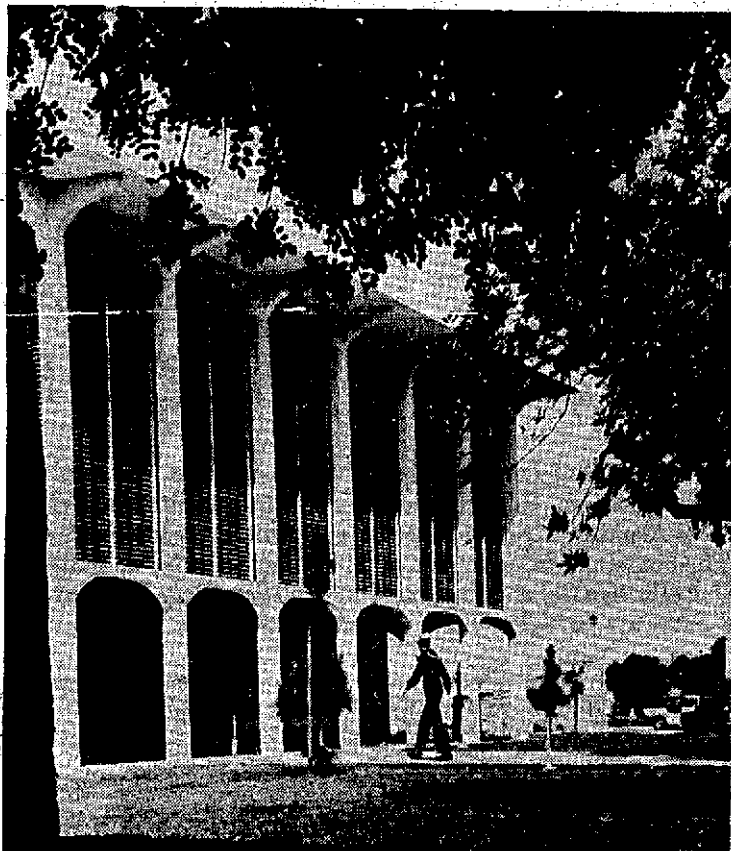

Variety shows are scheduled down below each Saturday for the under 21s.

When the Acey-Deucey is completed, combined with the Enlisted Club and the Flotilla Club on the Mole, they will comprise the largest EM Club complex in the world.

Three banquet rooms will be available for private banquets and parties.

Sailor, too, have a fine facility for entertaining their families and friends.

And the Navy is changing — coming to better things for the people that make it go — the White Hats . . .

Landmark Lures Many Leaders

According to a marketing research study just completed, the average family income for new Landmark homebuyers in the firm's LaPalma community is $23,695 a year.

The survey, conducted by the escrow department of Signal-Landmark, Inc., builder of Landmark Homes, revealed that the majority of new residents are in the business and professional vocational fields.

Monthly incomes of buyers from Jan. 1, 1970 to date ranged from a low of $1136 to a high of $2510. In a number of cases, the homebuyer's income was supplemented by a working spouse.

Occupations of the homebuyers were also a good indication of the Landmark market. Included in the survey was an importing firm president, a broadcasting executive, two armed forces professional administrators and a financial consultant.

The survey also indicated that incomes at this Walker Street development were significantly higher than at similar previous area developments by Signal-Landmark, Inc., one of the Signal Companies of Los Angeles.

Prices at the homesite range from $32,075 to $34,125 for the three- and four-bedroom, three-bath homes.

Included in the purchase price are two- and three-car garages, carpeting, patio kitchens with deluxe built-ins, draperies, front landscaping with a sprinkler system and rear yard fencing with a gate.

Model homes are on display daily on Walker Street between Orange-thorpe and LaPalma Avenues in the city of LaPalma.

Disaster Relief

Federal disaster assistance under the Disaster Relief Act of 1969 (Public Law 91-79) is now available to owners of private property who suffered storm damage during the storms and floods of January-February, 1969, Supervisor Burton W. Chace says.

The deadline for filing applications for recovery of costs incurred for materials and equipment used in removal of storm debris from private property is April 1, Chace said.

BEHIND THE SCENES America, Russia Star in Japan's Big Show

By REYNOLDS KNIGHT

NEW YORK — Another confrontation is in the making between the Soviet Union and the United States, but this time the circumstances are not so tense as they have sometimes been.

The occasion is Expo '70, which opened last week in Osaka, Japan. Those attending Japan's first world exposition showed particular interest in the exhibitions at the American and Soviet pavilions.

On opening day one Japanese guard pleaded with an American official, "Please help us. We don't have enough men to stop them," as swarms of visitors to the U.S. pavilion pressed against a thin cord of police to get a closer look at a lump of rock brought back from the moon by Apollo 12. For most of the opening week it took more than an hour to get into the American building.

The Soviet pavilion seemed equally popular. The building, which also houses a space exhibition, thrusts skyward in a giant red-and-white spiral crowned with a hammer and sickle.

Of course, the Japanese did not overlook their own pavilion. It currently ranks third in popularity and is the theme pavilion in the central festival plaza.

So far, according to all reports, there is an infectious quality of wonder and joy about the fair. One hopes this atmosphere remains until the exposition closes next September, since its theme is "Progress and Harmony for Mankind."

WOOLWORTH, FAR EAST

A program for combining the expertise of buyers for F. W. Woolworth Co. and its subsidiaries has gone into effect. Officials from Woolworth and Woolco in the U.S., Woolworth subsidiaries in England and Germany, and Richman Brothers, a men's apparel retail chain in the U.S., are visiting the Far East where they will share in buying experiences.

The group of 11 merchandising and buying experts includes Woolworth executive vice president, W. Robert Harris. They are examining merchandise manufactured in Japan, Taiwan, Hong Kong and South Korea.

Woolworth and its various subsidiaries have imported merchandise from the Far East for many decades and today buy such things as household items, wearables, gifts and novelties, electronic products such as small stereos, radios and television sets, toys and Christmas decorations.

However, Oriental merchandise has greatly expanded in recent years, and the buyers will be looking into the possibilities of any product that fits into the scheme of upgraded merchandise required to meet the needs of today's customers in the modern Woolworth, Woolco and Richman stores," Harris said.

BITS O'BUSINESS

It seems free samples are getting out of hand. During 1969 companies handed out enough free toothpaste to cover the nation's tooth-brushing needs for a full week . . . Dress pattern makers are coming into their own. According to latest estimates 40 million women make all or part of their wardrobes.

HIGHER EARNINGS

Despite the current softness of the economy, the rubber industry's 1970 domestic production of replacement tires, industrial rubber products, chemicals and synthetic rubber should increase by between 4 per cent and 6 per cent.

This prediction by Ward Keener, chairman of the B. F. Goodrich Company, and Harry B. Warner, president, is contained in their letter to stockholders in the recently distributed 1969 annual report.

Barring a major economic recession, the company is expected to attain higher earnings in 1970 than in 1969, the executives said. They also said capital expenditures in 1970 for new and expanded production, distribution and research and development, will be substantially lower than in 1969, when the company had record capital expenditures of nearly $138 million.

B. F. Goodrich is marking its 100th anniversary this year. The company was founded in 1870 as the first rubber company west of the Allegheny mountains by Dr. Benjamin Franklin Goodrich, a medical doctor turned businessman.

Dr. Goodrich's single-plant operation in Akron, with first year sales of $49,000, has grown into a worldwide corporation with annual sales of more than $1.2 billion in 1969. Today, its products are marketed in more than 100 countries.

THINGS TO COME

Glass roads? Maybe. A major U.S. company is co-operating with a university to test a 58-foot stretch of pavement composed of ground glass and asphalt. That should make news in Akron.

Bank to Cover Losses of Bouncing Checks

Check cashing, long the bane and burden of merchants everywhere, will become much less of a problem for California merchants starting immediately.

Bank of America announced a new Check Guarantee program for merchants, the end result of which may well be to increase sales.

"There is no charge of any kind for the merchant," according to Paul Sullivan, executive vice president for administration in Southern California. "Nor is the service limited to Bank of America customers."

Sullivan said that participation in the program can assist merchants in two areas—bad check losses (which totaled over $60 million in California last year) and the loss of business because of refusal to cash checks.

Here's how the program works:

Bank of America will guarantee payment of any personal check, up to $100, including checks drawn on other banks, when the check is presented to a merchant with a Bank of America Courtesy Card.

All the merchant has to do is record the card serial number on the back of the check and compare the signature on the card with that of the check. There is no other identification required and no other paperwork involved.

If a check bounces, it will automatically be covered if drawn on Bank of America. If drawn on another bank, the merchant simply takes the check to the Bank of America branch with which, he signed for the service and presents it for immediate payment.

"This check-cashing convenience will result in increased sales for many merchants," Sullivan predicted. "It will also make check-cashing a much faster process."

The bank is signing up merchants now and is providing free decals and promotional material so merchants can inform their customers that their business offers the new convenience.

How Many Rental Units Make Complex 'Too Big'?

By DON G. CAMPBELL

We are always reminded that theory is one thing, and life another, every-time we see a reducing belt advertised which guarantees that — with steady use — "you can lose an inch a week from your waist." This conjures up an interesting picture of how a 200-pound man with a 38-inch waist would look after using the belt consistently for just six short months. Could he really stand upright with a 14-inch waist?

Practical limits, in other words, spoil all the fun, and the same thing applies to the economics of rental property — if 20 rental units are good, that is, are 10 rental units half as good?

MR. CAMPBELL: You said, recently, that "a small house as an investment means little return." What about multiple units? Given that one can purchase readily rentable units at a reasonable price, is there an optimum number of units in order to have a good investment? What factors should be considered in determining this optimum?

Mrs. E.G.

ANSWER: When we're talking about real estate as an investment, of course, we are not — as individuals — nearly as concerned with optima as we are minima. We must assume, that is, that there has to be an optimum figure somewhere — a point at which an apartment complex becomes so huge that it begins to work against itself. We're talking about a project, here, involving tens of millions of dollars, however, and the worry of determining when "big" has become "too big," is sort of a moot point because, obviously, a project this big requires corporate management in the first place.

As far as the individual investor is concerned, I would assume (although, frankly, I haven't seen any figures mentioned) that an apartment complex has gotten somewhat out of hand when the investor finds that he is having to bring in so much professional help in managing and maintaining the property that his net return is shrinking. But, here again, we are talking about a really large complex, and an investment that is so large that it has little relevancy to most individuals.

Far more important, as far as the individual investor is concerned, is the matter of avoiding rental property that is too SMALL to be economically feasible. The four-unit apartment building — sometimes called a "double-duplex" — has enjoyed something of a revival in recent years for reasons that completely escape me because they are only marginally profitable under ideal circumstances. "Ideal," in this sense meaning when the investor-occupies one of the units and takes care of all maintenance himself.

Normally, 20 units is considered the point below which economical feasibility goes steeply downhill. It doesn't mean that there aren't thousands of investors "cutting it" with smaller apartment complexes, but it takes unusual circumstances and unusual talents to pull it off.

MR. CAMPBELL:

My problem is the property line between me and my neighbor. Growing on the line are a lot of trees, some a little more on his side than mine, and some more on my side. Now he wants to cut down these trees in order to run a fence down the line. The question is: does he have a right to cut any of these trees and, if so, who must bear the expense in so doing?

Mr. J.B.H.

ANSWER: It's HIS idea, let HIM cut them down at his own expense. Naturally, he has the legal right to erect a fence on his side of the property line and remove all of the trees that he cares to that are clearly on his side of that line. Watch him, though.

MR. CAMPBELL:

In a recent column you advised a couple to buy safe bonds with a 7 or 8 per cent interest rate. Where can you buy bonds like that?

Mr. S.S.

ANSWER: Treasury notes and bills, which are short-term U.S. government securities, are currently selling to yield about 8 per cent. Some "commercial paper," relatively short-term financing executed by large industrial firms (such as General Motors Acceptance Corporation and the like) are selling to yield up to 9 per cent. Any banker or broker can fill you in.

MR. CAMPBELL:

We recently bought a new house and something has come up that has us confused.

We know, that is, that termites are a problem in this area but that we shouldn't worry about it — according to our builder — because the house is equipped with metal termite shields. Unfortunately, though, we have a sort of "know-it-all" neighbor who says these shields don't work and that we should have the house "treated" by an exterminator anyway. So who's right, the builder or the neighbor?

Mr. W.W.

ANSWER: In theory, the builder should be right but, unfortunately, metal termite shields unless perfectly installed, which is rare — are not really very good protection. The "know-it-all" neighbor has a good point and a soil treatment by a reliable exterminator would be good insurance.

(Mr. Campbell welcomes your letters and comments. Unfortunately, he is unable to enter into personal correspondence, but will attempt to answer as many letters as possible through his column.)

Romney Shakes Up Housing

By LARRY BRYANT

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Housing and Urban Development Department has completed a reorganization plan intended to streamline the operation Secretary George Romney once called "a bureaucratic conglomerate."

The departmental shake-up revised established concepts and traditions, abolished entire divisions and changed titles and transferred staffs.

The plan was announced in November and completed just recently.

The most extensive changes took place in the Federal Housing Administration, which is responsible for all housing production programs.

Eugene A. Gullledge, FHA Commissioner, said housing programs will be split into two main categories, subsidized and unsubsidized.

The subsidized programs, under Assistant Commissioner Morton W. Schomer, will include low-rent public housing, home ownership assistance, rental assistance and supplements and housing for the elderly and college students.

The unsubsidized housing program, under recently appointed Acting Assistant Commissioner T. M. Alexander Jr., includes mortgage financing, multi-family housing, the basic rental housing program and unsubsidized rental housing.

Lawrence A. Cox, Assistant Secretary for Renewal and Housing Management, will be responsible for the social and financial management of housing after it has been produced. He will be concerned with the people who live in homes to be built or rehabilitated under HUD programs.

In addition to administering slum clearance and urban renewal programs, Cox will handle the social, physical and financial aspects of housing management.

The new Office of Housing Management was created under Cox to manage low rent public housing, multi-family housing, college student housing, rent supplement housing, and housing for elderly and handicapped.

Samuel C. Jackson, who serves as General Assistant Secretary and Assistant Secretary for Metropolitan Planning and Development, will be in charge of all departmental planning.

His division will administer programs to help communities with comprehensive planning and in carrying out the plans.

Romney said the reorganization applied only to the department's Washington headquarters. He said the 10 regional offices will be reorganized by next September.

Experts Disagree on Ways to Halt Gasoline Pollution

By GUY A. GOODINE
TULSA, Okla. (UPI) — Lead in gasoline has become the primary target in the controversy over air pollution but there is a great deal of furor about whether that is the primary solution.

The president of Humble Oil and Refining Co., has urged the industry to "put its house in order" but followed with a warning "that industry can't clean up the American environment all by itself."

Dr. Charles F. Jones told his colleagues, "society is demanding action and we as businessmen will be making a monumental miscalculation if we misinterpret either the seriousness or the urgency of this demand."

He added, however, "even if the industry completely eliminated air pollution in its operations tomorrow, pollution would still be national in scope and disquieting in magnitude."

While many organizations and lawmakers are urging extensive and immediate curbs on leaded gasolines there is no general agreement about how much lead gets into the air to pollute it.

There are disagreements, too, about how much unleaded gasoline is going to cost the consumer and what effect that type fuel will have on today's automobiles.

Another oil executive says the industry faces a double-barreled challenge of producing the product while at the same time leading in the task of preserving the environment.

J. E. Heston of New York, president of Cities Service Co., charged the oil industry with responsibility of restoring balance to the environment.

"Industry is going to have to devise means of producing the many goods which benefit our society while eliminating the unwanted side effects of pollution at a cost we can all afford," he said. "The new low-emission automobile is an excellent example that this goal can be accomplished."

The Du Pont Company, however, takes issue with how to solve the problem. It thinks a device to clean the exhaust will suffice.

Samuel Lenher, a Du Pont vice president, said the company is making public a thermal exhaust manifold reactor it says will greatly reduce auto emissions of hydrocarbons, carbon monoxide and nitrogen oxides.

"The reactor, he said, can be used on today's cars for which technology and hardware already exist."

"One reason for our development of this reactor is that it will greatly reduce emissions from conventional fuels, including gasoline containing tetraethyl lead, a product we manufacture. No changes would be needed in gasoline composition or refining processes."

Du Pont says extensive research shows no evidence at present that lead in gasoline is hazardous to health or contributes significantly to the formation of photochemical smog. He added, however, the company realizes that with the tremendous increases forecast for human and automobile populations some further restrictions on the use of lead in gasoline may be required in the future.

That is where Du Pont and some major oil firms begin to disagree. Most gasoline producers are moving now to remove lead from their product.

Du Pont, meanwhile, feels changes in fuel composition or redesign of current internal combustion engines are not necessary.

It believes its exhaust system reactor can solve the auto emissions problem through the next decade without penalizing the automobile and refining industries and with minimum expense and inconvenience to the motorist.

Most producers do agree, however, on one ingredient necessary to

WORLD OF WINGS

By HERB SHANNON
Aerospace Editor

Some Southern California passengers on selected Delta Air Lines flights from Los Angeles this week were treated to genuine old-fashioned square meals — the kind that come in a box.

The surprise was Delta's way of observing its 30th anniversary of stewardess service and the treats were handed out by Mrs. Allen Baker, one of the airline's first hostesses.

Wearing her old uniform (and not looking much the worse for wear), Mrs. Baker passed out what used to pass for first class box lunches containing a piece of cold fried chicken, potato salad, a piece of cake, maybe an apple and a dill pickle wrapped in waxed paper. She also dispensed lukewarm coffee from a king-sized vacuum bottle, just as she did 30 years ago when she was known as Laura Wink.

To make sure none of the passengers decided to bail out between Los Angeles and Atlanta, stewardess Phyllis Fincher followed close behind Mrs. Baker with Delta's 1970-style Royal Service, featuring chateaubriand, vintage wines and champagne.

For some reason, Mrs. Baker reported, there was more demand for the meals on round plates than the ones in square boxes. Thus passeth nostalgia for the Good Old Days.

AN OLD JOKE about the best defense against sonic booms being an anti-aircraft gun in the back yard apparently has been given some thought by the Federal Aviation Administration.

Among the unconventional methods for suppression of booms from aircraft in supersonic flight to be studied under a contract announced last week are the use of laser beams and electromagnetic techniques to alter airflow.

If the researchers can't shoot down the boom or electrocute it before it starts, they will explore the possibility of altering aircraft designs so they will slip through the air less noisily.

The FAA contract for $70,6992 went to General Applied Science Laboratories of Westbury, N.Y., to conduct the year-long study. A report on the study is to be issued in mid-1971.

FRANK SMOLAR
... 47 years selling cars

It would take a historian today to translate talk about Rattlesnake Island, the Southern Pacific spur to water edge, women in ankle length bathing suits, and the era of Phineas Banning, all tales from which emerged into today's Wilmington.

But talk about oil, or motor vehicles, and those who have "been around town" any length of time will probably think of Frank Smolar, vice president of Kott & Smolar, Ltd., local Ford dealership since 1945.

Today his automotive business at 336 W. Anaheim Blvd. in Wilmington reflects little of the past. "Unless you wish to consider our Model A Ford mascot . . . or the pumping oil well we have next to the showroom," Smolar said recently.

Edging the dealership, a small blister of oil storage tanks, silver against ocean and sky, store away 400 barrels a month of "black gold." Smolar calls the well his "insurance policy." "Whatever," he adds, "it's a nice, friendly thing to have around. It's been pumping away there for 20 years. . . ."

Although the five acres of Kott & Smolar property was a parcel from a Spanish grant, the early days of Wilmington was before the dealership's time. The laying out of the city in 1857 was a project for Phineas Banning, pioneer stage coach operator and land developer. It was Banning who bought the 2,400 acres which is Wilmington, San Pedro, Terminal Island and much of the harbor area.

Nor does Smolar's oil well reflect much of the petroleum glory wrapped in Signal Hill to the east. There in 1866 "Don Juan" Temple sold the former lookout point for ships "at 74 cents an acre." But it wasn't until 1921 when drills tapped the big oil reservoir. Eighteen years later 268,000 barrels a day were pumped from the field.

"That's a white back," Smolar grinned, telling the story from his office where he basked under a picture of an oil derrick. "I've only been here 47 years."

When Smolar found the port communities in 1923, his first job as a car salesman was for Ford in San Pedro. He liked cars. Karl Kott, who owned a dealership, also liked cars. In 1930 the two got together. By 1945 Kott & Smolar came into being.

Ten years ago Kott retired. Now holding the original firm name, Smolar has surrounded himself with a staff of 55 and a business delivering up to 1300 new vehicles a year contributing to an annual gross of $5 million. "In the beginning, 30 to 40 cars a month was big business," Smolar reflected.

Loyal employees is one of the attributes to success, Smolar pointed out. Some have been with the firm for many years such as Frank Sumner and Karl Pearson, both 25-year men.

"There's another old timer here too," Smolar motioned to a 1929 Model A Ford, the nickel of the radiator trim gleaming from its heart-shaped oval. "We sold it originally and years later took it back in trade on a new car. Now the Model A is here to stay." When Smolar praised the 1929 mascot, the nickel seemed to sparkle with renewed lustre.

In today's world, however, a business on the increase can not bask long on the reflections of a polished yesterday. Keeping pace with a buyer's local and international travels, the dealership's "Pick Up Your Cortina in England" is catching on. Smolar has made five trips to the Continent. He plans more. "We like to mix business with pleasure," he said. "My son and wife are teaching in Belgium."

Smolar's son Frank Jr. is a Stanford graduate with a master's from Columbia University in medieval history. Recently he was commissioned by Western Reserve, Cleveland, to write a textbook based upon his major. His wife, Arletta, also is a history major and is teaching in Brussels. They have one daughter, Anne 3, who already is bilingual.

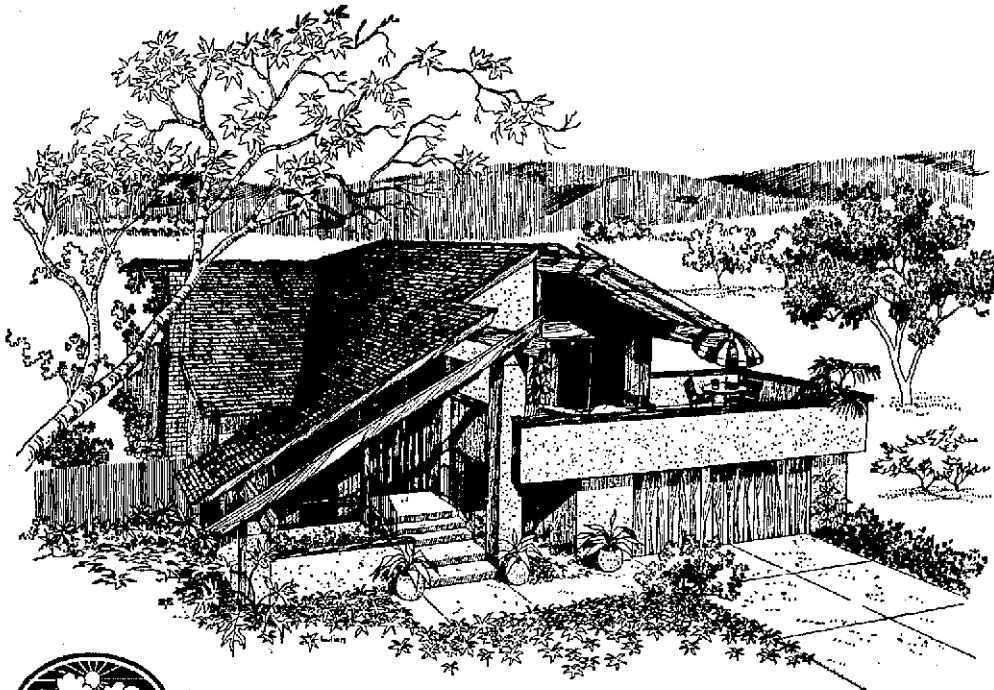

Smolar's automotive know-how has been picked up by the Ford Dealers Advertising Association of South California where he is vice president on a board of 16 representing 135 dealerships in 12 Southern California counties. He also has served as chairman of the Los Angeles Ford Council, and is president of Terminal Car Leasing, a subsidiary of Kott & Smolar.

With his wife Winnifred, now retired after 35 years teaching arts and crafts for the Los Angeles City Schools, the couple owes much to the land and the people of Wilmington. Mutual trust and respect is best shown in the tale of the Model A.

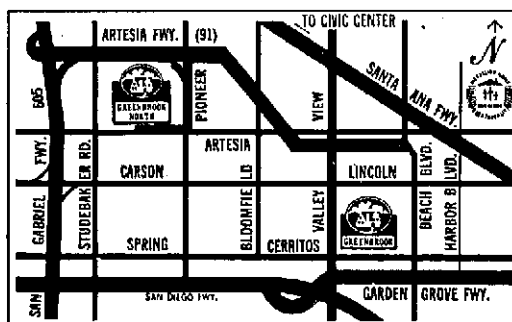

In 1929 Smolar sold the then new Ford to a San Pedro family. He taught the two daughters how to drive it. Today the family is still a Kott and Smolar customer. This is the kind of customer relations which allows a man to enjoy 47 successful years in the automotive business.

As for the land, as Smolar might say, "the old oil well just keeps pumping away. . . ."

Purchasing Power Drops, Pay Rises, Says Senator

CHICAGO — Sen. John Sparkman (D., Ala.), Senate Banking and Currency Committee Chairman, says that inflation is eating away the working man's pay.

In a speech to the National Installment Credit conference, Sparkman noted that even in a year's time inflation has deteriorated the actual value of the working man's salary. As an example, he pointed out that the average construction worker is making about $12.00 per week more than he was making at this time last year. However, in terms of what his pay will actually buy he is earning slightly less than he was last year.

"Take the case of a steelworker: his weekly pay has increased slightly over $8 per week," Sparkman said. "Yet, in purchasing power, he has suffered a weekly pay cut of $1.90. The average auto worker has suffered a weekly pay cut of $0.78!"

a family seeking a house of its own is "nothing short of catastrophic," according to Sparkman.
"The total volume of private residential mortgage lending has dropped drastically in the last year," he said. "At the end of 1968, the annual lending rate was about $17½ billion per year. At the end of 1969, the annual rate was about $5.8 billion. In one year, the level of private mortgage lending dropped to about one-third its previous level."

Sparkman said that President Nixon has authority to institute voluntary or mandatory credit controls in order to fight inflation. The Alabama Senator contended however, that the Administration feels that such controls are not necessary even on a selective basis.

"I find it hard to agree that selective controls would not help cushion the burden being disproportionately borne by some sectors of the economy," Sparkman stated.

PORTS O'PROGRESS

By JACK O. BALDWIN
Marine Editor

Matson Navigation Co. has announced plans are well advanced for a "land-bridge," possibly using leased trains, to transport containers in both directions between Europe and Japan.

Edwin S. N. Wong, vice president of Matson's Hawaii Freight Division, said this week that volume projections show the preponderance of the land-bridge traffic would flow through Southern California.

During welcoming remarks made during a ceremony marking the arrival of the SS Hawaiian Enterprise in the Port of Los Angeles with the greatest number of containers ever carried aboard an American flag vessel, Wong said the company was expanding its shoreside container handling facilities to keep pace with the expanding containerized cargo traffic.

He pointed out the company has under construction a 50-acre container terminal on Terminal Island. He noted the new terminal was the third container terminal in the port to be operated by Matson in the past 12 years noting that the company, a pioneer in handling containers had outgrown the other two.

The land-bridge concept the transportation of containers on specially-designed rail flat cars between the east and west coast is considered to be faster and cheaper than routing ships sailing between Europe and the Far East through the Panama Canal.

THE LONG BEACH BOARD of Harbor Commissioners, long aware of problems relating to pollution of port waters took action this week to further protect port air.

The board authorized a call for bids to construct a dust collection system at the bulk loader on Pier G.

Bob N. Hoffmaster, chief harbor engineer, has estimated the cost of the new system at $175,000.

The collection system would trap various types of dust created when rail cars are dumped at the facility located at Berth 212 in the Outer Harbor.

The collection system is to be designed to collect clouds of dust when the facility is being used to load outbound ships with petroleum coke, calcined coke, potash, and other objectionable chemicals.

IN-PORT-ANT PEOPLE: John J. Parkinson acquired another hat Monday. Parkinson, in addition to serving as acting general manager of the Port of Los Angeles, is: president of the San Pedro Chamber of Commerce; president of the Los Angeles-Long Beach Propeller Club; member of the executive board of the Los Angeles Area Council, Boy Scouts of America (from which he recently received the highly-prized Silver Beaver award) and at a board of directors meeting this week of the Catholic Maritime Clubs he was elected chairman of the board.

Named also were Richard Mars and Arthur McIntyre, vice chairmen; Joseph Costello, secretary; William Donohugh, treasurer, and Rt. Rev. Msgr. George Scott, port chaplain.

More Spinal Clinics Asked

By BEN ZINSER
Medical Science Editor

A foremost authority on spinal-cord injuries said in Long Beach Friday the newly injured civilian victim of spinal-cord damage deserves a better deal.

Sir Ludwig Guttmann, a British neurosurgeon, proposed a network of comprehensive treatment centers throughout the nation, preferably one center in each state.

IN ADDITION, such centers should be headed by a specialist in spinal-cord injuries, a specialty not formally recognized at present by organized medicine.

As things stand now, he said in a lecture at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital, there frequently is too much "Messing around" by specialists in other fields.

Sir Ludwig specifically indicted surgeons. They often do unnecessary surgery which can prove dangerous, he charged.

The lot of the paraplegic (paralyzed legs) and the tetraplegic, or quadriplegic (paralysis of all limbs), could be improved if the newly injured patient could be taken immediately to a comprehensive treatment center, Sir Ludwig said.

Now, specialized treatment centers frequently receive the patient who has been treated inadequately elsewhere and as a consequence suffers dangerous complications, he noted.

SIR LUDWIG founded the spinal unit at Stoke Mandeville Hospital, Aylesbury, England, in 1944, at the request of the British government. He was director of the National Spinal Injuries Centre for 22 years, until his retirement in 1966. He is editor of the Journal of Paraplegia Medicine and is the founder of the first international sports competition for the disabled.

He said two serious complications faced by the spinal-cord patient are infection of the urinary tract and pressure ulcers (bedsores). They can often be prevented if the patient is treated properly early enough, he said.

Sir Ludwig praised Dr. A. Eslin Comarr, chief of the spinal-cord injury service at the Long Beach VA Hospital for his contribution to paraplegic medicine.

Dr. Comarr's concept of intermittent catheterization of the urinary bladder, as opposed to placement of a permanent indwelling tube in the bladder, has reduced infection markedly, Sir Ludwig said.

WITH OLDER methods of catheterization, infection is inevitable and the danger of creating a fistula (abnormal opening) is great, he said. For the spinal-cord injury victim, a fistula can be a "devastating complication," Sir Ludwig said.

Sir Ludwig said too many surgeons are in too big a hurry to operate on victims of recent cord injury. Most such surgery is unnecessary and, more important, may be damaging by interfering with the blood supply in the spinal area.

If properly treated, many paralysis victims can be back on the job in four to seven months, Sir Ludwig said.

He defined his concept of rehabilitation as "transferring the hopeless and helpless individual into a taxpayer."

That's not a cold way of looking at it, he insists. The ability to pay taxes gives a man "dignity," he explained.

The federal government still owes the city $15,000 for the Summer 1969 Youth Opportunity Program. City Auditor Murray T. Courson said Friday, and he recommended renewed efforts to collect.

In auditing the 1969 program, Courson noted that the Economic Development Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce authorized a $20,000 grant to the city.

Purpose of the grant was to provide positions of a youth coordinator and a recruitment representative to aid the Mayor's Youth Council in coordinating planning and execution of youth programs in work, recreation and learning.

The City received the first quarterly installment of $5,000 last June, Courson said, but no further installments have been received.

The total budget for the 1969 program, he said, was $30,788. This included the federal grant of $20,000, a $10,688 cash contribution from the Long Beach Commission on Economic Opportunities, and an "in-kind" contribution of $720 by the commission.

The audit said there have been no cash disbursements by the city against the grant to date, and said the commission's records of cash and "in-kind" contribution were "incomplete" as of the date of the audit.

An examination of commission records, however, revealed that it has incurred expenses of $19,909, Courson said.

He recommended that the city's Department of Community Development "take further action to ascertain why the remaining outstanding $15,000 in federal funds, necessary to finance this program, has not been received."

The audit also recommended that the Department of Community Development request an acceptable billing from the LBCEO for all expenditures incurred for the program, and that the appropriate reimbursement be made "at the earliest possible date."

2 From Area Killed in Viet

Two more Long Beach area servicemen have been killed in action in South Vietnam, the Defense Department reported Friday.

Dead are Army Pfc. Jesse C. Frey, husband of Mrs. Adell C. Frey, 13803 S. Fidler Ave., Bellflower, and Marine 1st Lt. Robert E. Castle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Castle, 12862 Foothill Blvd., Santa Ana.

Mann said, "so we hope the change to Gus and Katie will clean it up a bit."

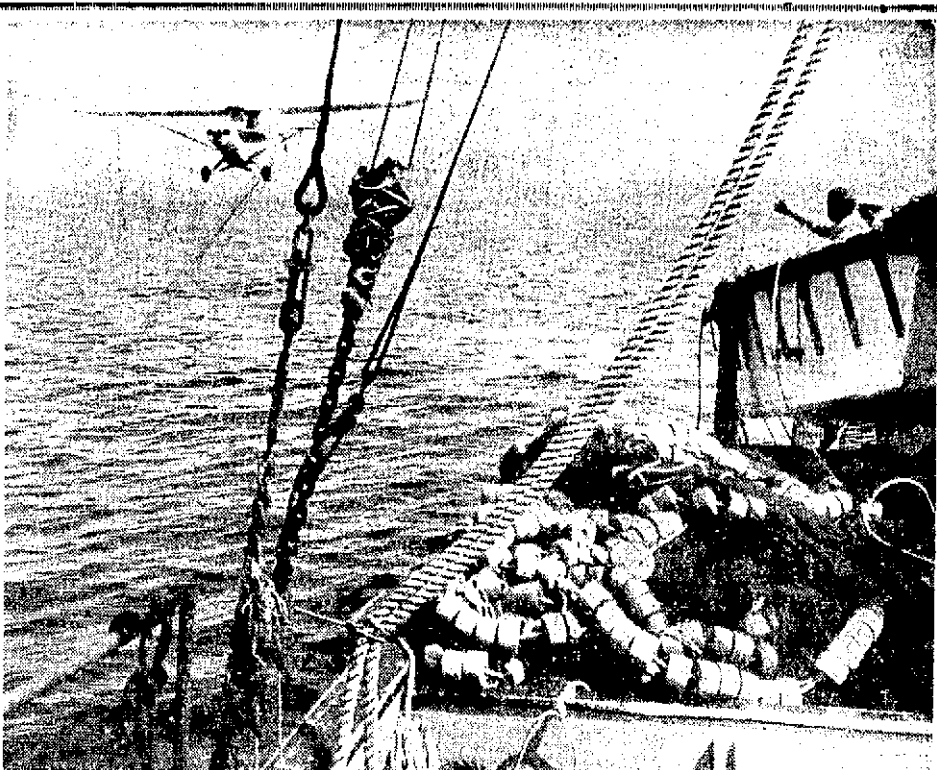

Unlike Bart and Lotta, Gus and Katie are fictional characters, he said.

This year's 49er Days will be extended to Sunday in hopes of drawing more community people to the Old West townsite. The open house — which will be held Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. — will feature guided tours of college departments.

And this year, proceeds from 49er Days will go to the school's Child Day Care Center Foundation. The foundation is attempting to raise funds to build a center to take care of children of mothers who are finishing their educations.

FIGHT ANCHOVY BAN

Seiners Show Their Skill

By JACK BALDWIN
Maritime Editor

Southern California's commercial fisherman fighting a recent ban which forbids them from fishing waters where Russian nets unfurl, shifted their attack to the high seas.

Skippers of several San Pedro-based purse seiners laid their reputation as skilled fishermen on the line. They offered to take a bevy of doubting newsmen out to sea and "guarantee you we will catch anchovy."

As the 65-foot, 150-ton purse seiner, Frankie Boy II, passed through the outer harbor enroute to the open sea, Wednesday the forward-looking sonar picked up several schools of anchovy.

AT 4.2 MILES OUTSIDE the San Pedro breakwater lighthouse, Capt. Frank Jacano picked up a circling school of anchovy on the electronic fish finder. Overhead a fish spotter plane piloted by veteran fisherman Paul Mardesich, helped Capt. Jacano maneuver his boat so he could set his net.

Manning the skiff and tending the 1,700-foot long net were crewmen in yellow oilskins and safari-type helmets. All were skippers of other fishing boats.

Cork floats held the net at the surface while a heavy chain took the bottom edge of the net down to 300 feet. The net fanned out from the boat in a large circle.

Standing in a waterfall of seawater beneath the dripping net as it was brought back aboard were the skipper-crewmen, wet to the skin despite their hats, oilskins, and boots.

In the net were an estimated six to 10 tons of anchovy.

After scooping up a small net full for lunch, the net was spilled and the silver-sided small fish quickly darted away from the boat.

OVER THE CITIZEN'S BAND radio came a report from the pilot that "several large schools are just offshore from Cabrillo Beach."

As the Frankie Boy II passed over the area the fish-finding sonar located 20 to 25 schools of anchovy.

The demonstration was an attempt to disprove a claim by sportfishermen that the anchovy resource has been overfished by the commercial fishermen. The sportsmen claim the anchovy have disappeared from inshore waters. They have expressed fear that the tiny fish may disappear entirely from local waters as did the sardine and some species of mackerel.

As of midnight March 23 the commercial fishermen were banned from taking anchovy for rendering into poultry and cattle food. Closed was a 4,500-square mile area between the mainland and Catalina Island, including a 12-mile-wide zone extending north along the coast to Pt. Conception.

The closed area included two triangles of ocean outside the 12-mile limit beyond the territorial jurisdiction of the U.S.

"A few years ago the federal government extended the three-mile limit out to 12 miles for the protection of the American fishermen from foreign fishermen," Jacano said.

"Because of rough weather and dispersal of anchovies in outside waters it is not feasible to fish them commercially outside the 12-mile limit. This puts us in the same class as the Russians or any other foreign fisherman who wants to fish off our coast," he added.

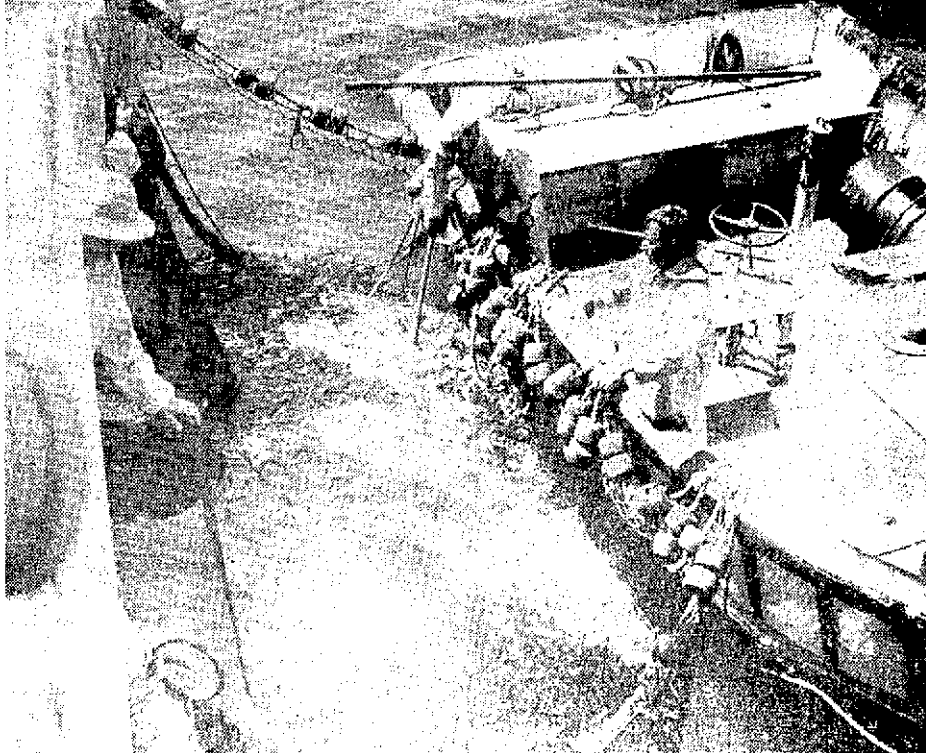

"As a matter of fact, in Zone 1 (the closed area) there are two areas where the Russians can fish anchovy, or any other species, and we cannot," Jacano claimed.

JACANO, VICE-PRESIDENT of the Fisherman's Co-Op Assn., claimed the ban levied by the Fish and Game Commission "is a direct violation of our constitutional rights."

However, a spokesman in the Attorney General's office said the U.S. Supreme Court has ruled a state has the authority to govern the actions of its citizens when such actions may be detrimental to the state's best interest even though the action takes place beyond the 12-mile limit.

The commercial fishermen, gathering moral and financial help from other segments of the industry, are mounting a legal offensive to be launched during a meeting of the Fish and Game Commission in Sacramento on April 2 and 3.

"This is our livelihood that is threatened," Jacano said. "We are not going to take this lying down," he added.

FISHERMEN NET ANCHOVY CATCH DURING DEMONSTRATION OFF SOUTHLAND COAST

THEY SHOT DOWN BLACK BART

By WALT MURRAY
Staff Writer

Black Bart's been gunned down. They've run Lotta Crabtree out of town.

There's going to be changes in Pete's Gulch this year.

That's the word from the student committee which is planning this year's annual 49er Days at California State College at Long Beach.

Starting shortly after the school's founding in 1949, the Old West town of Pete's Gulch has been raised on lower campus each spring, and Old West badman Black Bart and bar-room entertainer Lotta Crabtree have reigned over the celebration.

But this spring the April 24-26 event is being facelifted, expanded and made more accessible to the community. In addition, 49er Days has developed a social conscience.

Grubby Gus, a friendly prospector, will replace Black Bart.

Miss Katie, a prim schoolmarm, replaces wicked Lotta Crabtree.

For the first time, Pete's Gulch will be open on Sunday.

And new activities ranging from a campus open house to major sports events are being scheduled for the weekend.

"We were concerned about the image that 49er Days was creating on and off campus," said Dave Mann, co-chairman of the event.

"Several students and professors expressed unofficial concern that black students were offended by the name Black Bart," Mann said.

"We were also concerned about Lotta Crabtree's image as a prostitute and a slut," Mann said. "She wasn't really — she was an entertainer — but most people don't know that."

Students vying for the Bart and Lotta titles traditionally tell tall tales from the school's speakers platform and campaign for votes in Old West garb. "The tall tales were getting grosser and grosser,"

Mann said, "so we hope the change to Gus and Katie will clean it up a bit."

Unlike Bart and Lotta, Gus and Katie are fictional characters, he said.

This year's 49er Days will be extended to Sunday in hopes of drawing more community people to the Old West townsite. The open house — which will be held Saturday from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. — will feature guided tours of college departments.

And this year, proceeds from 49er Days will go to the school's Child Day Care Center Foundation. The foundation is attempting to raise funds to build a center to take care of children of mothers who are finishing their educations.

Myasthenia Gravis Unit Meets

Fifteenth annual meeting of the Myasthenia Gravis Foundation will be at 7:30 p.m. April 14 in Hastings Auditorium of USC medical school.

Recognition for outstanding service to the MG cause will be acknowledged during the meeting, according to Mrs. M. Karel Spak, 666 E. Ocean Blvd., a member of the planning committee.

sor of neurology at UC school of medicine, San Francisco.

Myasthenia gravis is a serious, often fatal, neuromuscular disease for which there is no cure.

Guns Stolen

A rifle and shotgun valued at $195 were stolen from the home of Homer Dunn, 811 E. New York St., police reported Friday.

Cause of the disorder is unknown.

Dr. Howard S. Barrows, professor of neurology at USC School of Medicine, is chairman of the organization's board of trustees. Puzzle of Friday, March 27, solved

DONALD DUCK

By Walt Disney

YOUR HOROSCOPE by JEANE DIXON

FORECAST FOR SUNDAY

Your birthday today: Your present efforts at personal improvement now stand to reap rewards. Luck in material matters runs strong and positive in ratio with the direction and drive you put into your ventures. There is also a premium on being the first to get an early lead on competition. You may have to neglect hobbies and social matters somewhat in this year's turmoil.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An early impulse to extravagance has to be rechecked. Your male has a few things to say as well. Prepare to switch plans and schedules without auburn.

Taurus (April 20-May 20): People are inclined to be agreeable but limited in what they can afford and the distance they can travel. Close friends have projects in mind that will distract some of your energies.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Other, more strenuous people seem bound to overdo pleasure-seeking and spending. Matters at home get complicated enough to force changes of plans.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): This Sunday mind your manners, make all the graceful moves quietly, and watch closely what everyone else does. You join a great deal if you can refrain from getting involved in any disagreements or squabbles.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Now is the time to join forces with friends and neighbors of like views and tastes to work out a better understanding of your situation and common interests.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Your temptation this Sunday is to use it for thinking out business or commercial plans.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Be alert for the needs and hopes of your loved ones today. Attention-seeking newcomers, distracting outside interests should not be allowed to upset your home life.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your social life now slows down a bit. Go with the tide of the times and keep everything simple.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): The division between intellectual interests and strictly family emotional sharing is quite sharp today. It is better to lay aside solitary pursuits like puzzle-working and letterwriting in favor of togetherness.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Relatives and their expansive ideas can be quite expensive in time as well as money. Leave commercial and business deals out of your schedule today - after all it is Sunday.

NORMAN VINCENT PEALE Let Easter Happen to You This Time

By NORMAN VINCENT PEALE

At the tomb of Lazarus in Bethany, I suddenly realized that I was standing on perhaps the greatest spot in the world. For this little village was the home of Mary and Martha and Lazarus, intimate friends of Jesus to whom He made that greatest of all assertions: "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live."

At that moment Easter really happened to me, a deep conviction of eternal life. When Easter really happens to you, you enter into one of the most subtle of all realizations, namely, that your loved ones who are physically gone from this earth, and you, yourself, are citizens of a dynamic universe, a universe that is not material but spiritual.

EINSTEIN SAID that matter and energy are interchangeable, one and the same. Sir James Jeans, one of the world's great scientists, declared that all the world is vibration. Materialistic scientists of the 19th century conceived of the world as material. The scientists of the 20th century are conceiving of it as dynamic spirituality. Did not William James say: "Apparently there is one great universal mind and since man enters into this universal mind, he is a fragment of it?"

That occasional flashes of the universal mind enter into an individual's mind indicates that the sloughing off of the body at death means absolutely nothing. That other self in us is the real and continuing self. Those forces in life which are beyond us, which we cannot understand, might be defined as the indestructible self which is at one with God.

I have quoted Einstein. I have quoted Jeans. I have quoted James. Now I am going to quote a cowboy. The philosophers are not always the wisest men in the world. Fishermen, farmers, cowboys — men who live with the universe — they may be the ones who have the greatest wisdom. This cowboy never had much schooling. He abuses the English language quite a bit, but his letter is written with sincerity. It is dated from San Antonio, Texas.

"Dear Sir, What is the thing that is spoke of as subconscious? I have used that thing all my life and I know there is something about it that I don't understand. I have read all I have gotten a chance to on the subject. I strongly believe that it is something we can use. I believe that it has saved my life many times.

"I WAS raised in West Texas and I spent much of my life breaking wild horses. And I know something that is called the subconscious will work on horses. I know that something travels from man to horse, and from horse to man. I have felt it on the bridle reins. That same thing will tell me which trail to take when I am lost in the mountains or on the plains. It guides me through the darkness of the night.

"You may think I am crazy to make such statements, but I won't try to do anything without first asking that thing about it. And I then act quick when the answer comes.

"Now if you can see any sense to this question and these statements, will you please answer me in very simple language. Your friend."

I like that cowboy. He is living with the stars and with the plains and with the mountains and with God. And he is a poetic soul and he is a philosopher. There on the trail he felt this "thing." What is this "thing"? Surely it is the power of the universal spirit having contact with the deathless something within himself.

Easter gives us a tremendous sense of victory. The human being was put here to overcome, to conquer himself, his environment, to make something of himself.

I DO not hold with those who want human beings to compromise and capitulate. How can a child of God not want to be victorious? Easter says that nothing in this world can stand against spirituality. Jesus conquers death; we conquer death through Him.

Did it ever occur to you that the Cross is a plus sign? It is not a minus sign. Does not the Bible say that Christianity itself is a process of addition? "But seek ye first the kingdom of God," — that is, the Cross — "and all these things shall be added unto you." Added, not subtracted.

What does the resurrection really mean? It means there isn't anything in the world that can defeat spirit in human life.

Saturday Mass OKd

In a move to permit Roman Catholics more flexibility in observing their Sunday Mass obligation, the 315 parishes of the Los Angeles Archdiocese, including Long Beach, have been authorized to schedule Saturday evening Masses beginning April 4.

The decision involves parishes in Orange, Ventura, Los Angeles and Santa Barbara counties.

THE RELEVANCE OF THE RESURRECTION

(Quotations from The New English Bible)

Jesus said, "I am the resurrection and I am life. If a man has faith in me, even though he die, he shall come to life; and no one who is alive and has faith shall ever die." (John 11:25).

Christ was raised to life—the first fruits of the harvest of the dead. For since it was a man who brought death into the world, a man also brought resurrection of the dead. As in Adam all men die, so in Christ all will be brought to life. . . . (I Corinthians 15:20-22).

Praise be to the God and Father of Our Lord Jesus Christ, who in his great mercy gave us new birth into a living hope by the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead! (1 Peter 1:3).

... He was given up to death for our misdeeds, and raised to life to justify us. (Romans 4:25).

Easter Tidbits You May Not Have Known

Many Easter customs relate to the idea of new life, according to the magazine Christianity Today. They have varying origins but appropriately symbolize the Resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Apart from the Resurrection itself, the most direct connection between Easter and the idea of new life is the timing of the celebration. For most Christians (namely those in the northern hemisphere), Easter comes in the spring, when all nature comes back to life.

The traditional sunrise service underscores Easter's new-life theme. It goes back to the Resurrection, which occurred in the early morning hours and meant the dawning of hope for men who believe.

The Name "Easter" may have some historical connection with the direction "east" and the rising of the sun. Perhaps significantly, the spread of Christianity through the centuries has been largely from east to west.

Eggs are symbols of fertility. So are rabbits. Their symbolic use undoubtedly had pre-Christian origins, but was accepted by Christians because it spoke indirectly of the new life Christ made possible.

Eating Hot Cross buns is one of the Lenten and Good Friday customs that have taken root in North America. There are many variations on this theme in history. Many kinds of breads and pastries have been marked by crosses.

The wearing of new clothes on Easter goes back a long way. In the early centuries, many people chose to be baptized during the Easter season. The newly baptized Christians adopted the practice of always wearing new garments of white linen.

Easter Island is sometimes referred to as the navel of the world. The remote Chilean dependency in the South Pacific was so named because it was discovered by Europeans on Easter Sunday, 1722.

Many people of Eastern European origin greet one another during the Easter season with the phrase, "Christ is risen."

The dating of Easter in the Western World follows a formula devised by the Council of Nicea in 325 A.D. Under this arrangement, Easter is celebrated on the Sunday after the first full moon on or after the vernal equinox. If a full moon occurs on a Sunday, Easter is the next Sunday.

Easter Sunday in the Western World may fall anywhere between March 22 and April 25, but the extremes are very rare. The last time Easter was on March 22 was in 1818, and it won't come on that date again until 2205. Easter last fell on April 25 in 1943 and will next come on that date in 2038.

Dioceses Join Church Council

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Four Roman Catholic dioceses are joining the Ohio Council of Churches. Bishop Clarence E. Elwell of the Columbus Catholic diocese, and Methodist Bishop Francis E. Kearnes of Canton, president of the council, announced that the Cincinnati, Columbus, Toledo and Youngstown dioceses would join the council in a "service of union" May 18 in Columbus.

Only seven other state councils of churches, all in the South, have Roman Catholic members.

The four Ohio dioceses have about half a million adult members. Two other Ohio dioceses, Cleveland and Steubenville, with about 400,000 adult members, have made no decision on joining the council.

The council includes 16 Protestant denominations with 1.75 million adult members.

Irvine Chancellor in 'Belief' Talk

Dr. Daniel Aldrich, chancellor of the University of California at Irvine, tells about his 2-week conference in February with Chaplains in Japan, on BELIEF. KNXT (Ch 2) Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

In dialogue with Dr. Clifton Moore, director of the Radio - Television Film Commission of the Council of Churches in Southern California, Aldrich talks about the role of religion on the campus of a state tax-supported university. He will answer questions concerning the unrest of college campuses, and he tells about his own activities in a Community Congregational Church in Corona Del Mar.

Mo. Lutherans to Meet in San Diego

Lutherans will gather in San Diego Tuesday to Friday for the 27th convention of the Southern California District of the Missouri Synod.

Delegates representing 219 congregations in Southern California, Arizona and Nevada at El Cortez Hotel will discuss various doctrinal issues.

Naval Station, Forest Lawn-Cypress Among Early Area Observances

By LES RODNEY

In stadiums, military installations, churches and on mountaintops Southern Californians will gather at dawn Easter Sunday to hear the "Good News" of the Resurrection proclaimed and interpreted in song and word.

For those who don't make the dramatic one-hour sunrise services, held at the approximate time of day when three women on a dusty Jerusalem hill found an empty tomb, special Easter programs have been scheduled in most churches at the regular hours.

At the Long Beach Naval Station, Capt. C. E. Stastoy, commanding officer, invites one and all to sunrise services starting at 5:50 at Gull Park, overlooking the ocean. The Cruiser-Destroyer Band and the 60-voice youth choir of Covenant Presbyterian Church will lend their talents to the occasion. Station Chaplain Jack R. Peters, president of the Long Beach Ministerial Association, will deliver the Easter message. Those attending are advised to enter the Naval Station at Gate 9. Parking is said to be plentiful.

THE USUAL five or six thousand persons are expected to attend the area's longest standing sunrise observance, starting 5:50 at the stately white Church of Our Fathers in Forest Lawn, Cypress, 4471 Lincoln Ave.

Rev. Dr. H. David Burcham, pastor of Long Beach Covenant Presbyterian Church, active captain in the Naval Reserve chaplain program, and president of the Long Beach Area Council of Churches, will bring the Easter message on "Mocking, Yawning or Believing," based on Acts 17:16-34. He will point up the similarities between man's current captivation with "something new," he says, and the parallel curiosities and responses of Apostle Paul's day, as evoked in his famous discourse before the Athenians on Mars Hill.

Music, as has become traditional, will be provided by concert soprano Norma Zimmer, and the 150-voice capella choir of Anaheim Western High School. The choir will wear white robes to form a cross on an elevated platform in front of an Ascension Mosaic composed of more than one million pieces of Venetian glass. The 12th annual event is sponsored by the Los Alamitos-Rossmore Ministerial Assn., with help from the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

THE 50-YEAR-OLD Hollywood Bowl observance at 5 will be addressed by Southland Methodist Bishop Gerald Kennedy, with music by Metropolitan Opera basso Jerome Hines, soprano Mary Costa, the 130-voice William Hall Chorale and the 150-member Easter Sunrise Youth Chorus. Actress Agnes Moorhead will read the traditional poem, "The Master Is Coming."

Pasadena's Rose Bowl, without gridiron stripes and USC, will present a 6 a.m. program featuring speaker Keith Miller of Texas, author of "Taste of New Wine," the Salvation Army Citadel Band, the Wheaton Girls Glee Club and the Gospellers. Mount Rubidoux, near Riverside, will present its annual sunrise service in one of nature's more spectacular settings. Ceremonies will be held atop the Palm Springs aerial tramway from 4 a.m. to 9 a.m., with breakfast and tram fares reduced for the occasion.

Closer to home, the Cal State Long Beach campus at College Drive off Bellflower Boulevard will be the scene of 5:45 services sponsored by College Park Church of God.

AT CERRITOS College's stadium in Norwalk, the Los Cerritos YMCA again sponsors an imaginative sunrise service, at 5:45. Speaker will be Capt. Boh Vernon of the Los Angeles Police Dept., who spends his summer vacations serving on the Hume Lake Christian Conference Grounds staff. A college-age vocal group from first Baptist Church of Lakewood, "The Satisfied Mind," will bring a message in song. High school youngsters will present an Easter drama, with narration by Joe Sults, instructor at Bellflower High School.

At the exact time of sunrise, 5:48, the Greater Peninsula Council of Churches will begin its annual service at Green Hills Memorial Park, 27501 S. Western Ave., San Pedro, overlooking the harbor. Easter message will be by Rev. Vincent Coletta, First Baptist Church of Palos Verdes, with trumpets from the San Pedro High School band and song by the Mt. Sinai Baptist choir.

The POWER of FAITH

By WOODI ISHMAEL

EASTER

"... And, lo, I am with you always; even unto the end of the world."

Mark 28:20

Toward the end of World War II as the Allies moved across Germany, Maj. Jack Smith, Commander of Combat Photo Units, U. S. Army Signal Corps, had a great revelation of faith.

With units in Southern Germany he saw a town near the Brenner Pass absolutely leveled by air, artillery and ground troops. There wasn't a wall standing or a brick in place. He was with the first patrol as they entered the town, with the mine sweeper going before them for protection. Tension ran high. The devastation was incredible. They turned a corner to go down a street but what they saw before them stopped them in their tracks in shocked disbelief. For before them in the rubble that had once been a church, and still standing, was the figure of Christ on the Cross. It was in perfect condition, no scratches or marks, not even any dirt on it.

Some of the war-hardened troops dropped to their knees in prayer. Others just stood there stunned, with tears streaming down their cheeks. Yes, Christ had again risen from the dead. Major Smith went on to say that as long as the troops occupied that town the standing Christ on the Cross was a shrine in itself. At dusk one would see weary soldiers going to the Cross for evening prayer and comfort.

Did It Really Happen?

By LOUIS CASSELS
UPI Religion Writer

Easter is the most important day of the year because it certifies our right to hope.

Hope is confidence in the future. It is impossible to be truly hopeful if our brief lives are circumscribed by the utter finality of death. For if that is our situation, all the future holds for any of us, ultimately, is the inexorable descent of the axe of annihilation.

Easter does not deny the reality of death. But it offers us the assurance that God is able to create new life beyond death.

The assurance lies in the fact that God has already done this on one supremely symbolic occasion -- the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

But is that really a fact? Did it really happen, or is the Easter story merely a lovely myth invented by disciples who could not reconcile themselves to the loss of their beloved teacher?

Obviously, no one is able at this remove in time to make categorical declarations about the reality or nonreality of an event alleged to have happened 2,000 years ago.

What can be stated as an abundantly documented historical fact is that there were witnesses -- not two or three, or a dozen, but several hundred -- who claimed to have seen and talked to Jesus after his death.

Ample Evidence, If You Believe It Could

These witnesses were not hallucination-prone mystics. They were farmers, fishermen and housewives. They knew as well as you and I that dead people stay dead, and they were fully as surprised as we would be to encounter an exception to this universal rule of human experience.

The depth and sincerity of their conviction is attested by their readiness to lay down their lives for it. Many of them cheerfully accepted martyrdom rather than deny the reality of the event they had witnessed.

It comes down to this: a person who believes that the resurrection could happen will find ample historical evidence to justify his believing that it did happen. But there can never be enough evidence to convince a person who has decided in advance that it could not possibly be true. It is a choice each of us must make for himself. Willy-nilly, we bet our lives on one viewpoint or the other.

The meaning of the resurrection (if it actually happened) is found in the nature of the event.

It was not, the witnesses make clear, merely the resuscitation of a human corpse.

Nor was it a demonstration of the "immortality" which Greek philosophy sought to attribute to a particular aspect of humanity (the soul) while acknowledging the death of the body.

The Jesus who was known to be alive after death was a new kind of being, endowed with a new kind of life. The personality of the human Jesus was recognizably present in the resurrected Christ, but in a new mode of reality which clearly baffled the witnesses and which they were never able to describe with any precision.

The key point, which the New Testament makes over and over again, is that Jesus was the pioneer and prototype of an experience which God wishes all men to share. Jesus was "the first fruit" of God's new creation, and his victory over death is our assurance that "we, too, shall live."

The Apostle Paul put the message of Easter in one vivid sentence: "By God's great mercy, we have been born anew to a living hope through the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead."

Pope's Easter Schedule Told

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI will celebrate Mass Easter Sunday in the tiny Rome suburb of Acilia prior to services in St. Peter's Basilica.

Plans call for the pontiff to celebrate Mass at 8 a.m. in the parish of San Giorgio Acausal Palocco, an Acilia parish administered by the Canossian Fathers.

He then will return in the Vatican to celebrate an 11 a.m. Mass in St. Peter's, and at noon appear at the central balcony of the Basilica overlooking St. Peter's Square to deliver the traditional blessing "Urbi Et Orbi" -- "to the city and the world."

Satan's Christianity

A Fable by MARK CLUTTER

Christ in the wilderness said: "Satan, appear!" Satan, having no choice, appeared in a flash of fire. The Two stared at each other with implacable hatred.

Christ said: "I have offered them the Light, and they have failed me. Even the patience of God has limits. I give them to you absolutely — for a time and a season. Do with them as you will."

And Jesus, turning away, wept.

There was a blare of drums and trumpets. Devils in the form of sergeants hustled all men into a variety of uniforms, thrust weapons into their hands and made them stand in formations of squads, platoons, companies, regiments and armies.

And Satan that great general, appeared in glory to all men. Standing on a mountain of flame, he addressed the troops: "Men, I offer you something new in the world. I offer you Honor and Love and Courage and Manly Virtue."

"Under my command you will love your neighbor and you will lay down your lives for your friends. You will fear no evil and will resist evil with all your strength."

"You will be humble, obeying faithfully the orders given for your common good."

"You will be loyal to your comrades, and you will be patient unto death. You will learn that man does not live by bread alone."

"You will take no thought of tomorrow. Whatever you can find of love or joy or truth belongs to this day alone."

"Money is an evil. Comfort is a weakness. Fame is a worthless bauble. And there is no peace except that which you may find in your own hearts."

"And now, above all, we fight, by land, sea and air, under the sea and in the infinity of outer space. In ice fields, in jungles, on mountain tops, in alleys, on a thousand beach heads and in ten thousand burning cities, yea, even under the mushroom cloud, you will learn the truth of my New Wisdom."

Years later two soldiers met in a dead city. Their tattered uniforms were of different colors. Their beards were white. They carried broken weapons. They were sick, crippled and starving.

They looked at each other for a long time, too ill to raise their guns.

Finally one of them said: "Sometimes I think we should have listened to the Other Leader."

The other said: "Yes, Brother, we should have listened."

EXPEDITION AIMS TO FIND OUT

Is Noah's Ark Under Mt. Ararat Glacier?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Noah's Ark rested, says the Bible, "upon the mountains of Ararat." It may be there still — in a lake of ice — and scientists will try to figure a way to dig it out.

From the days of Marco Polo to modern day aviators looking down on 16,946-foot Mt. Ararat on the Oranian-Turkish border, there have been tales that the great ship could be seen as a shadowy form in a glacier.

With new evidence that it may indeed be there, a group called SEARCH Foundation is trying to raise $1.25 million for a detailed look this summer and to study ways to melt the glacier and retrieve the ark.

In 1955, a Frenchman named Ferdinand Navarra, scaling Mt. Ararat with his young son, reported going into a crevasse and seeing a large quantity — an estimated 50 tons — of hand-tooled timber.

"Make thee an ark of gopher wood," God had told Noah. "Rooms shall thou make in the ark." The three-story ship was to be 300 cubits long — an estimated 450 feet — to preserve "of every living thing of all flesh, two of every sort."

Navarra brought back a five-foot long piece of 4-by-6 timber. It showed hand-tooling, resembling an external cornice in an L-shape.

The wood was not native to the mountain, but it was not known whether it was Melodyland Christian Center of Anaheim is participating in the expedition on Mt. Ararat. Wax and wood exhibits will be open for public viewing at Melodyland from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Easter Sunday.

the "gopher wood" of biblical times.

Last year, Navarra led a foundation group to the site and two more pieces of wood, 18 by 4 by 1/2 inches were found. Because they had been saturated so long with water, and Ararat is a volcano, there was an intrusion of sulphur and iron so scientists were able to date it only roughly as 1,500 to 5,000 years old.

"The objective this year is two-fold," said Robert C. Faylor, director of the Washington office of the Arctic Institute.

"SEARCH foundation is going to do further exploration for wood artifacts. The Arctic Institute is going to assist them in the glaciological research — understanding the dates of the glacier, what its behavior is, how old and to understand the geology of the mountain itself."

The Bible says Noah, his family and enough animals to repopulate the earth were on the ark.

"And the flood was 40 days upon the earth and the waters increased and bare up the ark and it was lift up above the earth," the Bible says. "Fifteen cubits upward did the waters prevail and the mountains were covered."

Mt. Ararat is in eastern Turkey, near the Russian border. Its base is in the desert, but at 14,000 feet — where Navarra's site is — there is a glacier of permanent snow.

"There never has been a glacier melted yet," says Faylor. "What we hope we can find is a source of geothermal heat. Conceivably one could drill into a volcanic mountain, put water in and get hot water out. That would save hauling a lot of fuel up there."

The plan is for a 25-man group to fly by helicopter to the site and do the scientific work during the three summer months — hopefully coming up with a way to get at Noah's ark — if it is there.

It ought to be. As the Bible says: "And the ark rested in the seventh day of the month upon the mountains of Ararat... and the waters decreased continually until the 10th month; in the 10th month on the first day of the month were the tops of the mountains seen."

First Century, a Jewish View

THE FIRST CHRISTIAN CENTURY IN JUDAISM AND CHRISTIANITY: Certainties and Uncertainties. By Samuel Sandmel. Oxford, $6.

Of the several versions of Palestinian Judaism existing in the first Christian century, only Christianity and Rabbinic Judaism have survived into our own time. It is in this century that Christianity burgeoned and split apart from Judaism; it is a century dealt with by historians and scholars of religion in a too narrow framework, with the Jewish and Christian facets isolated from each other.

Dr. Sandmel, Distinguished Service Professor of Bible and Hellenistic Literature at Hebrew Union College — Jewish Institute of Religion in Cincinnati, and a past president of the Society of Biblical Literature, author of "We Jews and Jesus," "The Hebrew Scriptures," and "Herod: Profile of a Tyrant," integrates the divergent materials and studies the research on this century, reviewing the problems associated with Christianity's emergence. — N.

Polarization, Presidents, Peale, and a Rare Exhibit

In an editorial on "The Perils of Polarization," the liberal Protestant magazine "Christianity and Crisis" warns against implacably righteous positions on the nation's problems.

"Historians tell us that the point at which democracy breaks down is when policies and programs are couched in absolute moral terms and compromise becomes impossible," says the magazine. "As long as the clash between East and West is seen as an irreconcilable conflict between Communism and democracy, agreements or settlements had no basis."

The article goes back to the days before the Civil War, when, it says, both sides "equaled Northern and Southern strategies with Holy Scriptures and the will of God ... The Reconstruction Era partook of the same spirit of moral righteousness more than of Lincoln's healing philosophy of binding up the wounds."

"To remind one another of these lessons will be appropriate as we approach the end of another bitter struggle," referring to Vietnam. And here it introduces what may seem a surprise twist to some Christian doves and pacifists, but perhaps really shouldn't be.

"If our goal is the preservation and strengthening of the Union, we must seek 'amnesty' not only for the foes but for the arch-defenders of the Vietnam War in courts, public assemblies and university campuses. Our problems for the future are too great for scarce human resources to be squandered or men judged forever by a Vietnam means test variously defined and interpreted."

"For America to grow ever more polarized must, therefore, cause concern; a house divided against itself is no more likely to stand in the late 20th than in the mid-19th century."

Yet to argue this point is not to call for an abandonment of moral ends and purposes. The need for clear and unequivocal thinking has never been greater."

REPLY TO query: No, there has never been a Lutheran president, which makes this communion by far the largest American religious group never to have been represented in the White House.

Part of the reason, of course, is the historical predominance of presidents of British background, which partly explains why Episcopalians and Presbyterians rank a runaway 1-2 in presidents. Actually, Gen. Eisenhower was the only president of German background, and he was a Presbyterian. There have been no presidents of Scandinavian background. These have been the predominant strain in Lutheranism. Most disproportionately represented according to population have been the Unitarians, who have supplied four presidents, as many as the enormously more numerous Methodists.

PREACHER - COLUMNIST Norman Vincent Peale, with whom I, P-T readers are familiar, has written a "mini book" giving his views on the generation gap, with an initial mailing of 100,000 to colleges and universities by the Foundation for Christian Living, a non-profit group. Though deploring drugs, drinking and sexual promiscuity, Dr. Peale says there is much positive to be said for "offbeat young people."

"Of course," he says, "we've got to admit that some do go to extremes, but actually young people don't bother me too much in this respect. Youth is the natural time ... to

He sees nothing wrong in an emphasis that love and sharing and relationships with other people on an honest basis are necessary for the creation of a better world. He calls for more understanding on both sides, and explains where religion can help.

THE HEAD of Christ, carved in ruby, rarest of all gemstones, is now on display for six months at the Los Angeles County Museum of Natural History.

Sculptor Harry B. Derian, who devoted a year of research and study in the Holy Land to his subject before beginning the eight-month work, carved it from a 4,000-carat ruby with more than 70 diamond drills, the only gemstone tougher than ruby. The head sits atop a TWIN CIRCLE, the conservative national Catholic newspaper founded in 1967 to counter what it considered too liberal influences, has passed the 100,000 paid circulation mark, with Southern California one of its bulwarks.

THE REORGANIZED Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, headquartered in Independence, Mo., has sent out a statement to newspapers to differentiate it on one point — that of the Negro priesthood — from the larger Mormon Church headquartered in Utah. The president, Joseph Smith, grandson of the original Joseph Smith, says that the Reorganized Church never endorsed as scripture the Book of Abraham which was canonized by the Utah Mormon Church in 1880. It is this book (translated by the original Joseph Smith, it is stated), which serves as the basis for the Mormon policy denying priesthood to the Negroes.

A spokesman for the Reorganized Church says it has a number of ordained Negro ministers, though no figure was available. He said the church has more than 10,000 members in Southern California, including a congregation in Long Beach and one in Lakewood.

Controversial T-Groups Spreading in Church Life

By EDWARD B. FISKE
New York Times Service

Sensitivity training, originated two decades ago to help industry improve its decision-making processes and give individuals deeper insight into human relations, is rapidly becoming one of the most important new elements of American church life.

Like hundreds of corporations, foundations, colleges and other secular organizations, religious bodies, ranging from local churches to national denominations are sending leaders to sensitivity training courses in increasing numbers to make them better executives.

In addition, individual clergymen and laymen have recently begun flocking to church-sponsored "personal growth laboratories" and "encounter groups" aimed at individual rather than group development. Supplementing personal discussions, these groups make frequent use of such techniques as dramatic improvisation, shouting and hugging aimed at increasing self-awareness and self-expression.

The Rev. Eli F. Wismer, director of educational development for the National Council of Churches, estimated that as many as 25,000 church members have had some contact with sensitivity training.

Church leaders say the personal growth aspect of the movement reflects the trend in society toward freer emotional expression. Many see the values inherent in sensitivity training as fundamentally religious and regard it as a fitting manner to restore emotion and personal concern to congregations whose life and worship have become formal and impersonal.

The Rev. Gerald J. Judd, director of Christian Education for the 2 million-member United Church of Christ, said: "It's a way of helping members get in touch with their feeling and learn to love. I predict it will be for us what revivalism was for religion on the frontier."

On the other hand, the Episcopal Diocese of Oklahoma has banned local church participation in sensitivity training, and The Christian Challenge, the publication of a conservative Episcopal group known as the Foundation for Christian Theology, has attacked the movement in a series of articles.

Mrs. Dorothy A. Faber, the editor, compared it to sex education in the schools and added: "We know of sessions with clergy participation that ended up with people dancing nude around the altar."

Moderates also have warned of harm that can be done by untrained leaders. Mrs. Cynthia Wedel, for instance, a former executive of the National Training Laboratories in Bethel, Maine, which originated sensitivity training, and the recently elected president of the National Council of Churches, said: "There is a lot of shabby work going on in this area."

As a result, a number of church-related agencies have sprung up in the last few years to educate and accredit "trainers." These include the Mid-Atlantic Training Committee in Washington and the Association of Religion and Applied Behavioral Science, a 350-member organization based in Philadelphia.

'T-Group' Controversy

Sensitivity training, which grew out of the writing of the German social psychologist Kurt Lewin, got its formal start in 1947 when three American psychologists established the National Training Laboratories in Bethel, under the auspices of the National Educational Association. In 1967, the laboratories became an independent non-profit corporation associated with the association.

The basic method is the "training group" (better known as the "T-Group") in which about a dozen persons—meeting and talking with no agenda—face each other for periods ranging from a weekend to several weeks and discuss the emotions and behavior that have risen to the surface.

The sessions normally produce a spectrum of tense reactions and feelings which, hopefully, lead to deeper understanding of oneself and others.

The Episcopal Church first became interested in the movement in 1952 and began sponsoring its own programs for church leaders with a staff trained at Bethel. Virtually every major Protestant denomination now has some sort of program in this area.

More than 3,000 denominational official and religious educators, for instance, have gone through management course's run by the N.C.C. that made heavy use of sensitivity training. Jewish groups, on the other hand, have shown virtually no interest in the movement, and Roman Catholics have only recently begun to experiment with it.

During the 1950's the secular sensitivity training movement moved heavily into the area of personal growth. A pioneer was Esalen Institute in Big Sur, Calif., which has spurred the creation of nearly 100 similar "growth centers" across the country in the last few years.

Churches have followed this trend toward personal growth, though they have been careful to avoid caressing, nudity and other practices that have brought criticism to some secular centers. "I would be extremely hesitant," said Judd, to introduce nude bathing to the Scarsdale United Church of Christ."

Princeton, Chicago and Eden (in St. Louis) are among the seminaries that offer sensitivity training to students. In Chicago, two dozen Catholic priests have formed the growth resources organization and pay $100 a year to participate in growth laboratories on a regular basis.

In Allendale, Mich., an "encounter group" of 20 persons is considering becoming a formal congregation. "Actually we're already a church," said the Rev. Erwin R. Bode, the counselor to the group, "because we have a Christian lifestyle."

Other churches have used sensitivity techniques in their youth programs. The Rev. Gabe L. Campbell of the Second Congregational Church in Greenwich, Conn., noted that "when kids develop relationships, they don't need drugs. We've tried to develop a natural high out of encounters.

At the Yearly Christ Episcopal Church the Rev. Robert Hardman operates weekly encounter sessions for three groups of 11th and 12th graders. "When kids face up to each other in conflict and love they come to understand what the Second Commandment means about loving their neighbor," he said.

Easter Tribute in Memory of Eisenhower

Actress Greer Garson will read the Easter story in tribute to the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower at a sunrise service Easter morning at the Palm Desert Community Church.

Gen. Eisenhower was honorary chairman of the church's building committee and his last public religious attendance was on Easter Sunday, two years ago, at the Palm Desert church.

Burton's Oscar Campaign

By BYB THOMAS
HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For a man who claimed he had no chance to win, Richard Burton seemed to be campaigning briskly.

"I'll be coming back next month to lose the Oscar," Burton said when I met him recently. "I must keep my record intact. Some people did research at the Academy and discovered that I hold the record for the number of nominations for an actor who has never won six in all."

Mrs. Burton finally arrived, and her husband greeted her across a crowded room with gestures and sounds of a begging dog. She responded like a clawing cat and disappeared in a bedroom with her hairdresser.

That morning he had taken one of their Yorkshire terriers for a walk. Because television interviews tend to unnerve him, he happened to drop into the hotel bar. The telephone at the bar rang for him and he expected to hear Elizabeth's voice. But it turned out to be his "Anne" co-star, Genevieve Bujold, who was also in the hotel.

"She said she was having a rather troublesome interview and would I please help her out," Burton said. "So I went up to her suite and joined her and the three men who were interviewing her."

"I was gone no more than 20 minutes in all. But when I returned and told Elizabeth where I had been, she was most displeased. She hasn't forgiven me yet."

3 Kinds of Spirituality Offered

By DANIEL CARIAGA
Music Critic

Three kinds of spirituality comprised the Maundy Thursday and Good Friday programs of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, this week in the Pavilion of The Music Center. Zubin Mehta conducted; the Los Angeles Master Chorale assisted.

Bach's B minor Mass will come later in this holiday weekend (tonight, by the way); the Bach on this 19th concert pair of the season was the Third Suite in D, and it opened this program with appropriate elegance. It is not, of course, a texted spiritual document in the way that Stravinsky's "Requiem Canticles" (1966) or Verdi's "Quattro Pezzi Sacri" (1890) are, but it fit beautifully in this context.

THE PERFORMANCE was mixed — in some moments, as in the Gavotte, successfully stylish and neatly propelled, in others, as in the Air, tentative and accident-prone. And, at all times, the Philharmonic's characteristically lush, vibrato-heavy string sound tended to distort Bach's characteristically straightforward lines.

At the evening's opposite end, the Verdi pieces benefited from that Romantic sound, as they did also from Mehta's driving approach. Unfortunately, these readings were also mixed — not in the orchestra, but in the Master Chorale (only 81-strong this time around), which made some ravishing sounds, some ordinary sounds, and some awful sounds.

The sopranos were particularly erratic, notably above the staff, where they zonked strong and solid B-flats in the "Te Deum," and floated a lovely B-natural at the end, but, earlier, they hit some ghastly and uncontrolled climactic tones in the "Stabat Mater" and the "Laud." Were they merely tired — this has been a hard week, admittedly — or has this really been an off-year for them?

In the "Canticles," at least, the 32 participating singers lived up to the Master Chorale's past standard. Here they displayed mostly clean diction, obviously thorough preparation, and musical surety. The two solo singers — baritone Douglas Lawrence and alto Phyllis Wilkins — also contributed neatly to the total effect.

STRAVINSKY'S serialistic piece, which seems to grow shorter each time we hear it (at its local premiere, three years ago, it filled a quarter-hour; the new recording times out at 14 minutes; Mehta's reading took just 12 and a half), seems also to increase in accessibility.

It is the opposite of diluted; it is distilled, pithy,

UCLA, Kansas Match Track Streaks Today

TROUBLE 'BRUIN' FOR KANSAS

Hartzell Alipizar, UCLA senior from Wilson High, holds Bruin two-mile hopes against Kansas today at Westwood. Alipizar has lowered his personal peak to 8:51.8.

By JOHN DIXON
Staff Writer

UCLA, which hasn't lost a track meet this year, and Kansas, which hasn't lost in three years, duel today on Westwood's artificial cinders, 1:15 p.m.

While Kansas will send five athletes to the starting blocks who own meet records, and the Jayhawks are coming off a victory in the national collegiate indoor championships, the meet rates dead-even.

"This is the best team Kansas has ever had," analyzed UCLA coach Jim Bush, "but we think that we're pretty good, too. This could be the most exciting dual meet of the year."

The competition is so strong, so deep, that Frank Johnson, a 9.5 Kansas sprinter, doesn't figure to score in the 100. Mickey Mathews (Kansas) and Steve Gibson (UCLA) can speed through a curved furlong in 21.0 or faster, yet they may not register a single digit on the scoreboard Saturday.

Last year Kansas cracked open what loomed as a "button, button" meet by finishing 1-2 in eight events. UCLA could do it today.

The Bruins have sweep — 9-0 point spread — possibilities in the javelin, high jump, long jump and triple jump. UCLA's only chance to prevent Kansas sweeps in the shotput and discus is oversized Mark Ostoich (62-2, 178-4).

The computer says that it's a tossup. Our dope sheet says that UCLA's come-through kids will win 87-67.

Cal State Long Beach has entered 35 men in the inaugural San Diego Relays, 10 a.m. in Balboa Stadium.

The 49ers will aim at school records in the 440 (40.8) and mile (3:10.9) relays. A team of Curtis Biggers (9.0), Ernest London (9.7), Jerry Bruton and Daniel Moore (9.6) will run the short race, while Moore (48.2), Eugene Jones (48.0), and either James Love (48.9 relay) or Wayne Stevenson (48.52) will join Clarence Palmer in the long race.

The Pacific Coast Club of Long Beach will point for a first place medal in the distance medley relay.

The Easter Relays at Santa Barbara, with a field of high school, junior college and open events, will commence at 9 a.m.

Occidental hosts USC at 1:15 p.m.

Predicted finish, with outdoor lifetime bests in parentheses:
100 — Mathews (Kan) 9.3, Robinson (UCLA) 9.3, Reeves (Kan) 9.4, Johnson (UCLA) 9.5, 200 — Mathews (Kan) 20.3, Meade (Kan) 20.9, Robinson (UCLA) 20.7, Johnson (UCLA) 21.2, 400 — Foster (Kan) 47.0, 800 'Another World' Soap Opera Due

NEW YORK (AP) — NBC will launch on Monday a new daytime serial called
"Another World — Somerset." This must not be confused with NBC's most popular soap opera, "Another World — Bay City," which until today was just plain "Another World."
It is hard enough to keep the titles of daytime serials straight because none seems to give any clue about content. Now "Another World" is about to divide like a one-cell Para-mecium.

"Another World — Somerset" is one type of what television calls a spin-off. This one will relate in various ways to the established serial, including exchanges of characters and, occasionally, interwoven story lines.

THIS TYPE of program reproduction is hard ly
new. When "Peyton Place" was at its popularity peak on ABC as a nighttime serial, CBS spun its "As the World Turns" off into a new, prime-time serial simply by having the heroine of the daytime soap opera, Lisa Hughes, go to a distant city to make a new life. The show did not do well, and it was only a matter of weeks before Lisa decided she liked life better in dear old daytime Oakdale.
By making "Another World" two serials, NBC obviously hopes the old audience for one show will stick around for the second.

U.S.-CANADA AIR EXERCISES SLATED

MARCH AFB (UPI) — Strategic Air Command planes will participate Tuesday and Wednesday in joint U.S.-Canada training exercises, it was announced Friday.

SAC aircraft will over-fly the Canadian provinces of British Columbia, Alberta and Saskatchewan as well as all the Western states of the United States.

Residents of California and Nevada were warned in a SAC announcement to expect sonic booms by SR-71 reconnaissance aircraft on high altitude supersonic missions.

Supersonic flights are conducted during early morning daylight hours to prevent interference with normal civilian air traffic, SAC said.

Wide Search for Plane Lost With 6 Aboard

GRAND CANYON, Ariz. — A dozen planes searched the rugged, snow-covered Arizona-Nevada country without success Friday for a light plane missing with five Europeans aboard.

Four of them were Germans, members of the German Day School Association, making a two-week, study-travel tour of the United States, and the fifth was an Austrian airline stewardess, according to a member of the tour.

THE SINGLE-ENGINE plane disappeared shortly after it took off Thursday night when the airliner scheduled to take them to Las Vegas, Nev., was unable to accommodate all 32 members of the tour.

Tour officials and operators of the Grand Canyon Air Lines identified the Germans as Friedrich Meier, Berlin; Klaus Spahn, Essen; Mrs. Helga Gruger, Bruehl, and Dr. Karl Schwarz, Darmstadt.

The stewardess, who was not a member of the tour, was not identified.

The plane was piloted by Russ Marsh, 50, Prescott, Ariz.

Karin Tachimmel, a tour party member, told the Arizona Republic from Los Angeles, that the 32-member party flew from Phoenix to Grand Canyon Wednesday. When they prepared to leave Grand Canyon for Las Vegas Thursday, she said, Air West asked the stewardess to give up their seats because the airliner couldn't take the full number safely from the Grand Canyon airport.

PLANES FROM Luke Air Force Base and private planes and helicopters from Northern Arizona towns searched the Grand Canyon-Las Vegas route without success Friday, and plan to return today.

Miss Tachimmel said the tour was sponsored by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

400 Yanks in Foreign Jails on Drug Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than 400 American citizens are in foreign jails on narcotics charges, many of them in dirty, overcrowded and unsanitary cells, a State Department official said today.

In a series of interviews for Metromedia Radio News, Barbara Watson, the department's administrator of consular and security affairs, told of the American inmates abroad — about 700 on all charges — and their efforts to enlist the aid of her office in winning release.

"Many of the young people who are traveling for the first time think of traveling to Europe or to the Middle East as a dream, and as a place where the laws will not be very well or very rigidly enforced," Miss Watson said. "We would like to inform the public that this is not the case."

THE TRANSCRIPT of the six-part radio series also told of conditions in several foreign prisons, including the Sans Prison in Beirut, Lebanon, in which one unidentified former American occupant said he shared a 50 foot by 25 foot room with 75 to 100 people. He said it had a hole in the floor for a toilet.

Miss Watson said "There's very little, really, that a consular officer can do" when an American is jailed abroad.

"First of all, they do try to determine the reason for the detention and the official charges which are lodged; and then visit the detainee with a list of attorneys. But beyond that, there's very little that he can do."

"He of course can also notify the parents or friends back home to let them know that they are in trouble and seek any funds or advice that they would require."

IT'S NOT ALL DOWNHILL If Amputees Learn Skiing, 'They Can Do Anything'

By JACK SCHREIBMAN
Associated Press Writer

NORDEN, Calif. — "Awright, Karl, you others, let's get 'em off," the man with two legs ordered the men with only one.

The sun reflected brilliantly off the clean, white snow as Karl Ericsson removed the prosthetic limb from the remainder of his left leg, shattered in Italian mountain action in World War II.

The 48-year-old Pleasant Hill, Calif., man pinned up the empty trouser leg, supported himself over a low stool, and placed his good leg in the binding of a ski.

Up on a slope of Boreal Ridge, a ski resort on the summit of the Sierra 180 miles from San Francisco, skiers flashed over the snowy terrain — each making three tracks.

THEY WERE amputees skiing on one regulation ski and helped by two outriggers — forearm crutches with hinged ski-tips on each end.

Their progress, and that of Ericsson, huffing and puffing to regain with one leg a sport he learned as a child of two in his native Sweden, was noted by a rangy, deeply tanned man, the one with both legs.

He was Jim Winthers of Sacramento, executive secretary of the National Amputee Skiers Association.

"If you can ski, you can do anything," he said, watching Ericsson take his first nosedive into the snow.

The association, through tax-deductible private donations from groups and individuals, is teaching about 400 amputee victims of accidents, disease and war the confidence-building joys of skiing.

Amputee skiing has been a dramatic success with the young victims of the Vietnam war.

Winthers, who helped found the NASA in 1963, said, "I have never had one failure. The men feel if they can do this, they can do anything — and they can."

One of Winthers' apprentice instructors is Doug Pringle, a West Point graduate from San Francisco who lost his right leg from shrapnel at Tan An in Vietnam in 1968.

Weeks later, lying in a bed at Letterman General Hospital in San Francisco, Pringle, with some other amputees, was convinced to take a try at skiing.

"It was fun," said Pringle.

IN FACT, he was so captivated by the sport that he insisted the 16 operations he underwent in the 13 months be scheduled around his ski dates in the mountains.

Now, the red-bearded Pringle is regarded as a tiger of the slopes who is looking forward to his certification tests signifying he is a top instructor.

Head instructor at Boreal Ridge, headquarters area of the NASA, is Jim Graham, a skier for 30 years when a chronic bone disease cost him his left leg eight years ago. In 1967, a board put him through the toughest maneuvers, pronounced his skill and technique excellent, and made him one of America's two amputee professional ski instructors.

The association invites groups of Vietnam amputees at Oak Knoll and Letterman hospitals in the Bay Area to learn to ski, Winthers said.

"The men come alive again," he said.

Canadians Study Draft Evaders; Few Have Regrets

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Youths who have left the United States for Canada to escape military service are involved in a "creative search for identity," a team of Canadian researchers report after studying 30 of an estimated 100,000 young Americans living in the north.

The study of the expatriates describes the men as feeling "a sense of exhilaration and freedom" because they are "establishing new roots in Canada."

The report was prepared by Katherine Rider, Carl L. Kline, M. Elrod and Karen Berry of the Children's Aid Society and the University of British Columbia in Vancouver.

ness, seeking a divinity school diploma, or claiming ideological beliefs incompatible with military service, because they were seen as avoiding basic issues.

Instead, the young men believe their choice provided "new models with integrity, justice and autonomy," the Canadians said.

MOVING to Canada to start a new life was a "creatively directed search for identity," the researchers said, that "came squarely to terms with the real issues of the day."

Most of them "felt no sense of sacrifice in having left the United States," the report said, and "few had any desire for amnesty and return to the United States."

The report noted that the men interviewed gave three reasons for refusing military service: "the draft law is incompatible with the American ideal of self-determination; the Vietnam war is wrong, and American cultural values have deteriorated to a point of no return."

U.S. Agrees to Lend India $86.6 Million

NEW DELHI (AP) — The United States has signed an agreement with the Indian government to provide $86.6 million in rupees this year to help finance major development projects.

Funds for the loan, which is to be repaid over a 40-year period at interest rates ranging from 2 to 3 per cent per year, are derived from rupees previously paid by India for agricultural commodities supplied by the United States through the Food for Peace program.

The loan is to be used for financing agricultural development, power generation, development of ports, expansion of highways and improvement of rural health centers.

Bankruptcy Can Cost Vote in Italy

ROME (AP) — Italy's Constitutional Court has ruled that an Italian can be deprived of his vote if he is bankrupt.

The court said bankruptcy could be evidence of "moral unworthiness," for which Article 48 of the Civil Code says the right to vote can be withheld.

"It is not unreasonable," the court held, "that for the reason of unworthiness, the bankrupt be deprived also of the electoral right because the electorate presumes in the citizen suitable qualities of the highest civic level."

Sea Bottom Yields Data from Eclipse

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The U.S. Navy has collected scientific data on the March 7 eclipse of the sun from a mile below the sea, it was announced Friday.

The data was in a scientific payload aboard an Aerobee rocket launched 100 miles above the earth from Wallops Island, Va., by NASA on the day of the eclipse. Its parachute failed and the payload sank 75 miles off the launch site.

San Francisco Has Miniature Expo 70

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A "Mini-Expo '70" opened Friday at the Japan Trade Center, and its display includes the original model of the "Tower of the Sun" featured at the world's fair at Osaka.

Japanese sculptor Tara Okamoto created the model for presentation to the Expo committee while the fair was still in the planning stage.

DEMOLITION SQUAD, BRING CRACKERS

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — It lay there on the bridge deck, round, black, with what looked like a fuse, the very image of an old-time comic strip bomb.

Rollin Taylor, 57-year-old maintenance foreman on the San Francisco-Oakland Bay Bridge, took no chances when he spotted the object Friday morning.

For the fourth time in its history, the Bay bridge was closed to traffic. Hundreds of cars backed up at both ends, even at that early hour.

An Army demolition team arrived, advanced cautiously, and identified the object as an imported cheese, encased in black wax. Its loose wrapping string was the "fuse."

5 Panthers Held for Police Threat

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Five persons, including two juveniles, have been taken into custody for questioning concerning an alleged plot by self-claimed members of the Black Panther party to kill two police officers, authorities said Friday.

Capt. Raul H. Riveiro said the alleged attempt upon the lives of officers Richard Hurd, 34, and Robert Seal, 28, occurred early Tuesday.

The plot was foiled he said, because the officers became suspicious.

Korean Air Lines Keep Police Aboard

SEOUL (AP) — The Korean Air Lines has begun posting a police lieutenant aboard all its international flights as a precaution against hijackers.

A spokesman said 11 police lieutenants, all of them English-speaking and specially trained in self-defense, are posted on the airline's flights to Tokyo, Osaka, Fukuoka, Taipei, Hong Kong, Saigon and Bangkok.

Vandals Attack U.S. Consulate Office

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Vandals broke six huge panes on the glass front of the U.S. Consulate Friday, police reported.

Rocks were thrown through approximately half of the windows that form the building's front. The vandals escaped, police said, and there was no clue to their motive.
